Editorial

We are perhaps a little too close to the events to comprehend fully what the decade of the sixties will mean in the history of Man. Perhaps only one thing emerges with any real clarity – it was a decade marked by great material progress, and in our personal lives we could not fail to be aware of this. The triumphs in space, the advances in communications, medicine, agriculture, etc were all part of man's dynamic progress. The frequent reference by European politicians to the idea of a technological society was no mere wishful thinking – it was a material reality. And yet, caught up as we were in the material advances of mankind, all of us at one time or another must have been conscious of the real need to retain the worthwhile traditions of the past so that in the final analysis our lives would mean something in totality, not just in their material aspect. We are here concerned more with the spirit of Man – his love for things and values inherited, his care for the protection and furtherance of ideas and institutions held in high regard, his love for his fellows.

How are we to combine tradition and progress? Perhaps there is no absolute answer; if a solution is to be found, and history perhaps demands that it must, then we here in Australia surely have to look no further than to our own heritage – to the British people. The second half of the decade of the sixties was dominated, at least in the area of communications, by two television coverages, viz., the American moon landing, which impressed us all as the highlight of an "age of progress", and the investiture of H.R.H. The Prince of Wales. The latter was just as relevant to our lives as the former.

Here was the most magnificent statement possible concerned with the relevance of tradition to our lives as twentieth century men. Surely here was no mere hollow longing for ceremony. What did it mean? The sense of tradition, of the past, was all-pervading, but it was a sense of tradition that was relevant and meaningful – taking that which is inherited from the past, applying to the present so that the future could be indicated with greater firmness and resolution on our part. The ceremony tried not to capture what happened so many hundreds of years ago, but rather tried to represent what was of significance to the people of Britain in the twentieth century.

And what does all this mean for us at High? This School has its traditions and, rightly, is proud of them. But traditions do not only indicate something of the past – they must indicate both the present and to some extent the future. Surely this is what makes a particular tradition so worthwhile, so meaningful. And thus with this edition of "The Record". History judges greatness in some measure by the willingness of institutions and individuals to both initiate and respond to change. The editors hope that in that sense this edition of "The Record" will be a testimony to the greatness of this School. The editors have attempted to retain the worthwhile features of previous editions, to indicate something of the School in 1970, and perhaps even to offer some suggestions as to the desirable developments awaiting us. We hope that in "The Record" a real sense of the traditions of the School as they apply in 1970 are apparent, traditions which are acceptable because they tell not of what we were but of what we are.

The Editors.

'The Record' Editorial Committee, 1970

"The Record" Editorial Committee for 1970 was faced, at the commencement of the year, with the very real responsibility of editing a journal which in many features represented a break with previous magazines. As Staff Editor I have appreciated particularly the willing co-operation of the Editorial Committee, namely John Sutton (Union Representative), Ian Besomo, William Miller, Michael Abeles, Andrew Field, and Robert Middleton (Sports Editor). If in any sense the 1970 edition of "The Record" can be regarded as a success, then all credit must go to the six boys just mentioned. As many would appreciate, work on "The Record" commences early in first term and all associated with it are kept busy well up until the date of publication. The fact that all the students working for the magazine are engaged in demanding studies as well as in numerous other School activities is indicative of their general enthusiasm, an enthusiasm of which the School needs to be readily appreciative.

The Editorial Committee has been assisted by a number of sub-committees. A vote of thanks must go particularly to Norm Madden and to Michael Grosbard, who at the beginning of the year agreed to cover the photographic work necessary for such a journal. Both boys went about their assignments with an eagerness which I greatly appreciated. Their coverage of the Rugby season was probably the most comprehensive yet as far as photographic work is concerned at High.

It is not always easy to attract sufficient advertisers to a School journal, and this year was no exception. The work in this area was the responsibility of Philip Gerber who, after two years in the same position, is a most reliable and efficient clerical assistant.

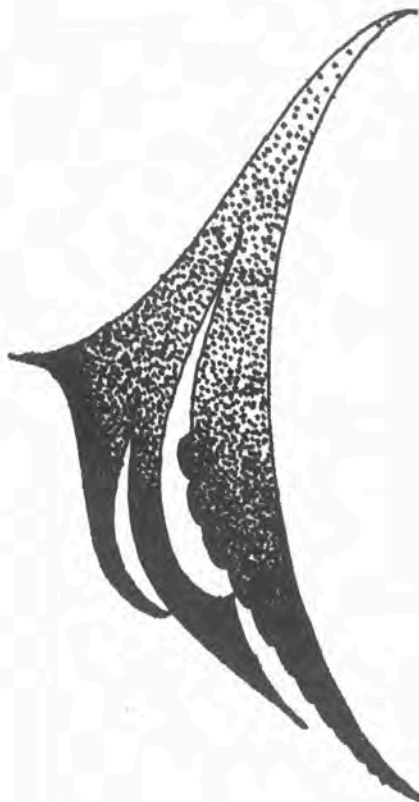

As Sports Editor Robert Middleton had perhaps the most difficult task of all the Editors. The tabulating of sports results and collection of sports reports is a task which keeps the boy responsible fully occupied throughout the year. In this regard Robert Middleton has been a more than capable Sports Editor. He has been assisted by a number of Fourth Form boys, including Ian Whan, David Dellamarta, Manual Aivaliotes, and George Papaellinas.

Chris Henning has covered the art work in "The Record."

To the Headmaster, members of Staff, students and others who in some way were associated with the journal, a sincere 'thank you.'

The Headmaster's Message

I have just been reading the address delivered by Dr. Charles Badham, Professor of Classics at the University of Sydney, at the inauguration of Sydney High School, in October 1883. This was the first 'homily', the first message of hope, encouragement and advice, the first reminder to the first students of this 87 year old School. The setting for this address was distinctive, the occasion marked the foundation of the first 'public' High School in Australia - or, to use the term of those days - the 'Colony'.

I have been thinking of the scene, in a large room in a not very imposing building in Castlereagh Street: some forty or so pupils, with the Headmaster, Mr. John Waterhouse, and a small teaching staff, a number of proud parents, probably the Minister for Public Instruction, the Lord Mayor and other dignitaries, all assembled to hear the Inaugural address by one of the Colony's most distinguished scholars.

This, 87 years ago, was the first Assembly of Sydney High School.

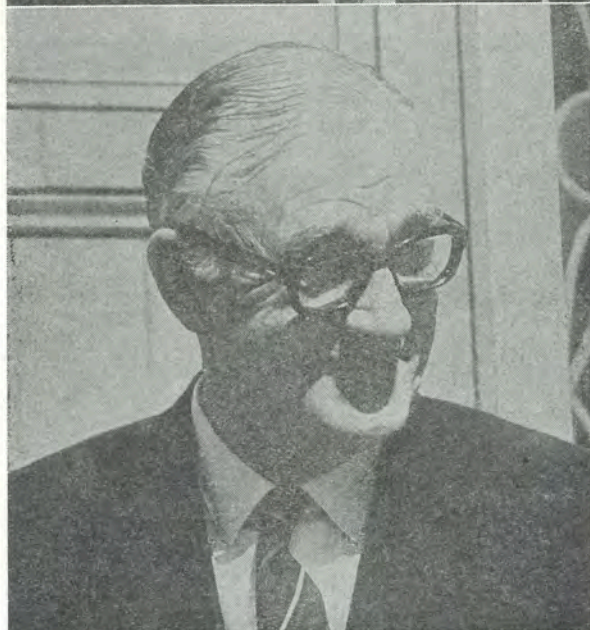

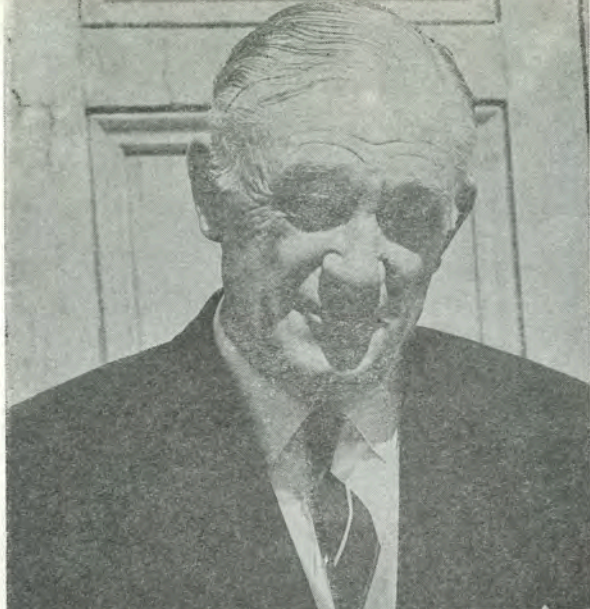

Many of the learned doctor's phrases and expressions were perhaps more suited to the life and the manners of 1883, but the essentials of his message are still as relevant as they were on that memorable day. He spoke of the privilege that the first students enjoyed, of the opportunity that lay before them, of the qualities of resolution, of perseverance and of industry that alone would bring success, of their responsibilities to themselves, to one another, to their family and to their country.

And finally Dr. Bradham said the occasion was particularly one for "joyful hope".

"Be full of hope, my young friends; for hope is the only soil in which good resolutions can grow; and we too, will hope with you and for you, and the utterance of our hope shall be in devout and loving wishes for your success and happiness."

I commend these words to you - for it is this spirit of hope that motivates all of us who are concerned with our welfare.

School Captain's Message

All pupils who attend Sydney Boys' High School have the opportunity to take advantage of the wide variety of clubs and sports within the School. These opportunities are provided through the generous help of the Parents' and Citizens' Association, the Old Boys' Union, and the Staff. Irrespective of the interest of these bodies in the School and its wide range of activities, the success or otherwise of the School depends finally upon the actual participation of members of the student body. Participation does not mean engaging in only one activity, but rather in as many School functions as possible.

There are many things upon which a School may be judged. Not the least important of these is "school spirit". School spirit has a great deal to do with the success of a school, both on and off the sporting field. All members of the School should realize that, while they are a part of this School, they represent the School; in a very real sense they are the ambassadors of the School. A sense of pride about our School and all that it means to us should be reflected in the spirit of the student body. Sydney High has a great deal to be proud of, and it is up to each one of us to ensure that the School has a worthwhile future.

J. Ehrlich

The School Prefects

In October 1969 Prefect elections were held and the following students were elected to office:-

Paul Berghouse, Peter Burgess, David Clark, Paul Connell, Anthony Cordato, Ian Coss, Lindsay Cotterill, Ross Day, Geoffrey Dunn, Joshua Ehrlich, Geoffrey Franklin, Mark Gerber, Craig Gibbons, Jeremy Glass, Wayne Hooper, Geoffrey James, Paul Logan, Ian

Luxford, Neil Odze, Stephen O'Neill, Alan Spigelman, Colin Tremont, Ron Williamson, Clive Young.

From the Prefect body Joshua Ehrlich was elected School Captain, Alan Spigelman, Vice-Captain, and Ross Day, Senior Prefect.

A Prefect holds a position of considerable responsibility in the School organization. He should set an example for the remainder of the School to follow, and he should have the respect and co-operation of the students in general.

Our Prefects have certain specific duties to perform, such as supervision of the Tuckshop area, the playground, and of buses and trains. Their efforts in these areas have contributed very much to the smooth running of the School, and to the good name and reputation of the School being upheld in the eyes of the public.

Joshua Ehrlich has carried out the duties of School Captain with a readiness that has earned him the respect of his fellow Prefects, the student body, and Staff. A part of the School Captain's task is to provide leadership through example—Joshua Ehrlich can look back on 1970 with a good deal of satisfaction in this regard.

The School Captain has been well supported by Alan Spigelman and by Ross Day. Both boys have assisted in the organization and running of the Prefect body, and have certainly upheld the high standards set by their predecessors.

During 1970 a new scheme was introduced in regard to election of Prefects. In July eight new Prefects were elected from Fifth Form. These were Gregory Bell, Stephen Bell, Ian Besomo, David Blomberg, Steven Halliday, Bart Hacobian, Dudley Ling, Michael Symonds. The Fifth Form Prefects will work with the existing Prefects, and from the beginning of Third Term will take over most of the duties associated with the Prefect body, in view of the commencement of the Higher School Certificate.

There will be a further election of Fifth Form Prefects early in Third Term in order to increase the number to approximately twenty. The Fifth Form Prefects who have been serving in office will be able to give considerable guidance to the newly appointed Prefects.

It Is Recorded

Mr. A.J. Cocking. This year Mr. A.J. Cocking, B.A., B.Ec., has taken up duty as Deputy Headmaster of Sydney Boys' High School. Formerly Deputy Headmaster of Narrabeen Boys' High School (and Acting Headmaster during most of 1968), Mr. Cocking has had wide experience in all types of schools. Mr. Cocking, like the Headmaster, is an Old Novocastrian.

Mr. G.B. Bradford. The School offers its congratulations to Mr. G.B. Bradford, formerly Deputy Headmaster of High, upon his appointment at the commencement of 1970 as Headmaster of Penrith High School.

New Members of Staff, 1970. The School welcomes the following new members of Staff, appointed during 1970.

English/History: Miss C. Howard, Mr. P. Cady, Mr. J. Whiting, Mr. M. Whiting, Mr. W. Andrews, Mr. J. Roberts, Mr. J. Wray, and Miss S. Page (who was transferred to Temora High at the end of first term).

Mathematics: Mr. R. Govers, Mr. I. Denton, Mr. M. Zvargolas, Mr. C. Cobley, Mr. R. Gabbott.

Classics: Miss N. Vance

Science: Mr. A. Emmerson, Mr. R. Mina

Commerce: Mr. P. Brown, Mr. W. Tobin, Mr. S. Shapiro

Art: Mr. M. Horne

Music: Miss H. Dawidowicz

Physical Education: Mr. R. Cameron, Mr. E. Wiseman, Mr. B. Green.

Staff Changes, 1969-70. This year we have lost the following teachers by promotion, transfer, and resignation.

Mr. J. Brownlow - The Kings School

Mrs. R. Cheney - Hunter's Hill High School

Mr. A. Dyball - Liverpool Girls' High School

Mr. R. Grant - Coonabarabran High School

Mr. E. Griffiths - Matraville High School

Miss M. Harvey - Chatham High School

Mrs. D. Hornibrook - Killara High School

Mr. J. Parker - Beacon Hill High School

Mrs. F. Stone - Dover Heights Boys' School

Mr. J. Tierney - Wagga Teachers' College

Mr. J. Casey - Resigned

Mr. M. Foy - Resigned

Mr. N. Ryan - Resigned
Mr. R. Gouttman - Resigned
Mr. R. Petrucelli - Resigned
Mr. R. Cameron - Resigned
Mr. J. Richards - Resigned
Mr. M. Green - Resigned.

Prefects, 1970. This year the following boys were elected to the office of School Prefect:- Paul Berghouse, Peter Burgess, David Clark, Paul Connell, Anthony Cordato, Ian Coss, Lindsay Cotterill, Geoffrey Franklin, Mark Gerber, Craig Gibbons, Jeremy Glass, Wayne Hooper, Geoffrey James, Geoffrey Dunn, Robert Keleman, Paul Logan, Ian Luxford, Neil Odze, Stephen O'Neill, Colin Tremont, Ron Williamson.

Captain: Joshua Ehrlich, Vice-captain: Alan Spigelman, Senior Prefect: Ross Day.

Mr. J. Casey: Although regretting the loss to the School of a most respected member of Staff the School offers its congratulations to Mr. J. Casey, formerly Mathematics Master, upon his appointment at the conclusion of first term as the supervisor of the teaching of mathematics at the Royal Naval College, Jervis Bay.

Mrs. B. Braithwaite: During the year Mrs. B. Braithwaite completed ten years of service in the School Office. The Headmaster and Staff took the opportunity to recognize Mrs. Braithwaite's service at High at a Staff Meeting held on the 25th June. Mr. Lucan-Roberts spoke in appreciation.

Assemblies, 1970: The weekly assembly, an important part of school life, continues to be held in the Great Hall. The assembly is now held at the conclusion of fifth period each Monday. An innovation which has proved to be most successful is the presentation by boys of musical items. The School Orchestra also takes part in many of the assemblies and their performances are most appreciated. The practice has also been introduced of boys giving reports on Saturday sporting results, and all of this has contributed much to the maintenance of school spirit.

The New Block: Due to delays unforeseen at the beginning of the year it now appears unlikely that the new block will be open in time for the commencement of third term. Already it is possible to see that the new block will detract nothing from the aesthetic appearance of the School as a whole.

First Form Open Day: On a Sunday during first term many First Form boys took the opportunity to bring their parents to the "Open Day" arranged by the First Form Master, Mr. Booth. Boys and parents met in the Great Hall for a brief time to see some items arranged by the boys. An inspection of the School followed. The reaction of both boys and parents indicated that the Open Day was a great success.

School Grounds: Mr. Booth and his willing band of First Formers continue to ensure that the School grounds have an attractive appearance. The work commenced in the quadrangle last year with the addition of the fountain, continues and adds greatly to the general environment of the School.

Distribution of "The Record": "The Record" is distributed to a large number of schools throughout and beyond Australia. In N.S.W. it reaches eight G.P.S. schools and 93 State high schools. It is also sent to several other schools and colleges throughout N.S.W., including the Methodist Ladies College and Waverly College. Interstate the "Record" is sent to a number of schools, including the Royal Military College, Duntroon and Melbourne High. The overseas circulation is as follows: Christchurch (New Zealand), Balfour Technical College (Canada), Glace High Bay School (Canada), Glasgow High School (Scotland), Jeppe High School (South Africa), Marlborough College (England), and Scott Collegiate Institute (Canada).

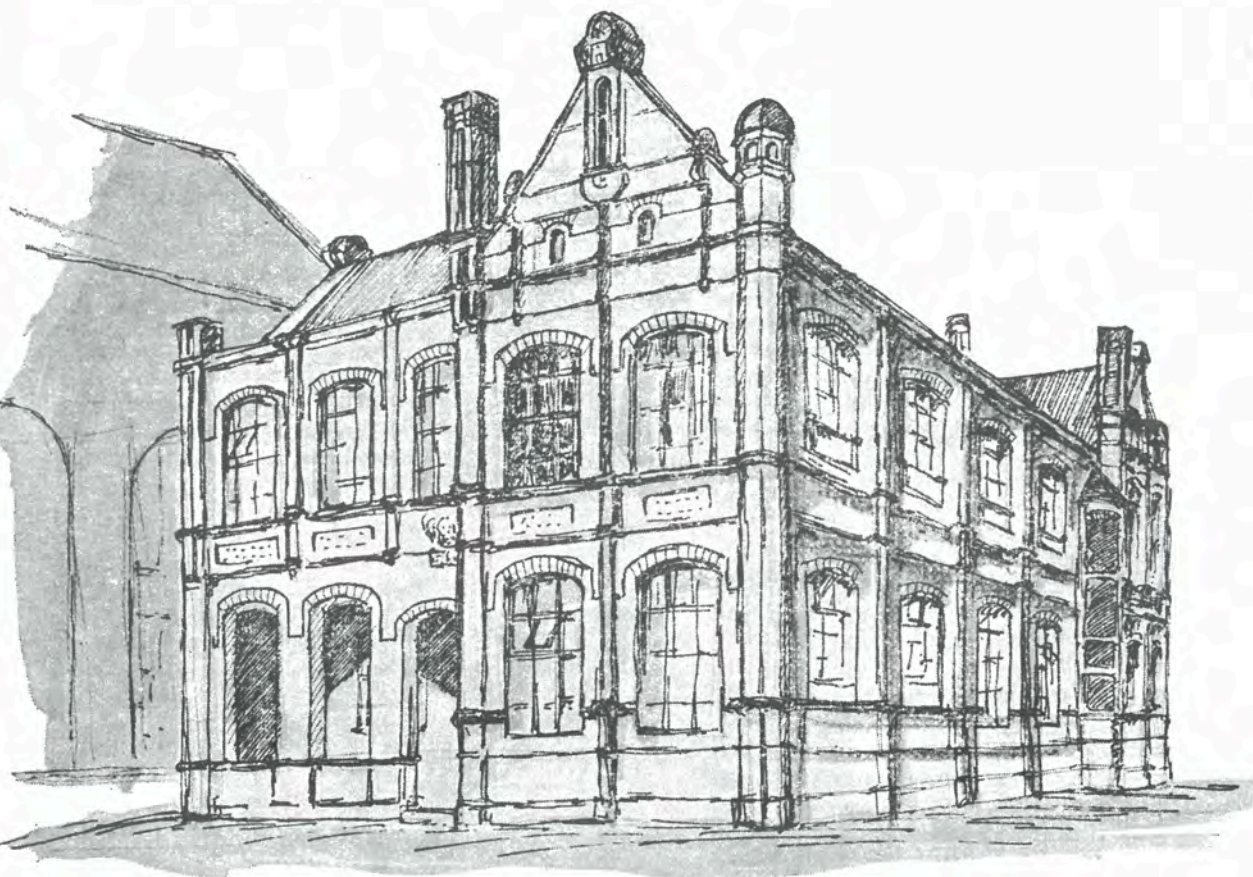

Fifth Form Prefects: On Friday, 11th July, a special assembly was held for the investiture of the first group of fifth form prefects. The Headmaster explained to the School that it had been decided to initiate some changes as regards the timing of investing prefects, and that subsequently each year would now see the election of a limited number of fifth form prefects. The group would give continuity to the prefect body in view of the fact that the sixth form prefects were on duty for only a brief third term due to the H.S.C. The Headmaster also took the opportunity to introduce the new Prefects Master, Mr. Tobin, to the School. Mr. Tobin spoke briefly on the role of the prefect in the School.

The Prefects invested were:— I. Besomo, D. Ling, G. Bell, S. Bell, D. Blomberg, S. Halliday, R. Hacobian, M. Symonds.

Extended Playground Area. Due mainly to the building activities in the School grounds, members of the junior school are now permitted to use the adjacent area of Moore Park during recess and lunch. This has been a popular move with the boys who have taken advantage of both the larger area and the unusually pleasant winter season to enjoy themselves.

A Link With Early Sydney . . .

(Editor's Note : The following article is a brief history of the area of "Mary Ann Street", Ultimo, where the first buildings of The Sydney High School were located. The article is by Mr. John Harris (junior), a collateral descendant of the sixth generation of Surgeon John Harris of the First Fleet. The school is indebted to Mr. Harris for the contribution of this most interesting article, and also wishes to express its appreciation to Mr. J.H. Tonkin for his interest in this particular matter.)

In 1803 Governor King granted thirty four acres of land west of what is now Central Railway to Surgeon John Harris, surgeon of the New South Wales Corps, and a holder of various public offices, including that of magistrate. In the same year the Surgeon erected a beautiful two-storey mansion on the farm.

The unusual name which the house and farm were given by the Surgeon had its origin in the continual bickerings and jealousies in which the officers of the New South Wales Corps were constantly involved and which culminated in the Rum Rebellion of 1808 against Governor Bligh. Surgeon Harris, though an officer of the Corps, was not, during the governorship of Philip Gidley King (1801-1806) a sympathiser with the grasping officers who were making a fortune out of the rum traffic. As a result, he was continually feuding with many of them, and as officers were above the ordinary civil courts of the land, the feuds often ended up in courts-martial, where one or other of the factions would have members of opposing sides put on trial before their fellow officers. Harris was court-martialled twice, being acquitted both times. It was one of these courts-martial in 1803 which gave Ultimo House and the suburb of Ultimo its name.

The diary of Mrs. Lachlan Macquarie, wife of Governor Macquarie, who met Surgeon Harris for the first time in Rio de Janeiro in 1809, best relates the story: Mrs. Macquarie was looking at some pictures of scenes of Sydney. "One of them", she writes, "was a drawing of Mr. Harris' house, which is situated in a park about a mile from Sydney. The park is stocked with deer and it looked altogether to be in much higher style than anything we expected to find in the New World. I observed the words, Ultimo Place - The Seat etc. at the bottom of the drawing. I was struck with the oddity of the name and asked what that could mean, on which the doctor, with an air of the utmost importance, strutted up to me and said, "I can explain that to you, Madam. I was once summoned to attend a Court Martial. The Gentleman in reading the charge happened to say: 'This Court being convened on the 12th ultimo, instead of instant; they were not classical, but I, Madam, being classical immediately perceived the mistake. I ridiculed them and wrote verses on the subject then and afterwards called my house Ultimo House."

Later grants of land in the area increased Surgeon Harris' Ultimo Estate to 232 acres and it extended out as far as what is now the Colonial Sugar Refinery at Pyrmont. Surgeon Harris died in 1838 but his family continued to own the estate and to live in Ultimo House until just before the First World War. In 1883, the Governor, at the instance of the Board of Technical Education, bought a small strip of the estate fronting Broadway and Harris Street from Mr. John Harris, the Surgeon's nephew. It ran right alongside but did not at that time take in Ultimo House itself. The Board erected on this land the Technical College, the Technological Museum and the two High Schools, but as the classes expanded over the next twenty years more land was needed and in 1908 Ultimo House itself was resumed and the family had to move out. The house was used for classrooms and laboratories until 1932 when it was demolished to make way for a more modern building. It was the oldest house in the City of Sydney.

During the subdivision of the estate which took place in the 1870's and 1880's, streets were laid out and some were named after members of the Harris family. Thomas Street, now spanned on both sides by the Sydney Technical College, was named after another nephew of the surgeon, Thomas Harris, who owned the historic Experiment Farm at Harris Park, Parramatta. Mary Ann Street was named after Miss Mary Ann Harris, a great-niece of the surgeon. She was quite a personality in her own right and died as recently as 1966 at the age of 94.

John Harris.

School Activities

Sociology Course, 1970

Last year's School Captain made mention of an increase in extra-curricular activities, aimed to broaden the interests of students. This year such an activity was the Sociology Course formulated by Mr. D.A. Shortle, whose time, energy and enthusiasm were limitless throughout its duration.

Having confronted the students with a concept of weekly seminars, those interested (with some assistance from Mr. Shortle), planned the course themselves, consisting of lectures, seminars and discussions.

Lasting for an hour each week, the twenty-four topics were divided into four groups:-

- (a) Society and Culture
- (b) Analysis of Social Groups – the Layering of Society and Social Class
- (c) Social Change
- (d) Current Issues

Of the twenty-four topics, Mr. Shortle led six, four were led by students (Elizabeth Jenkin, S.G.H.S.; Geoffrey May; Les Szekely; Phil Bear—all of High) and the remaining fourteen were taken by guest speakers.

Phillip Bear was elected secretary and had the task of summarizing the topic presented, and his notes were distributed in the form of stencilled synopses. About thirty copies a week were sent also to external sources.

Miss Moore, Headmistress S.G.H.S., permitted Sixth Form girls to attend, adding that she wished the students every success in their initial course. The Headmaster indicated his interest in the prototype course and gave it publicity in the assemblies.

Opening on the note of "Society and Culture" Mr. Shortle presented most interesting and valuable material. In defining society he suggested that it is "a group which perpetuates itself and a system of relationships by organization, co-operative effort, and behaviour." He went on to say that "culture was the sum total of things learnt, customs and mores transferred socially from generation to generation." Mr. Shortle added that Australian society was distinguished by its definite recognizable image and its convict-political, democratic history." Looking deeper into culture and cultural change he compared traditional, close-knit, Chinese culture to current, permissive, American-nuclear culture and put forward the idea that "hippies" were not just "deluded dropouts" but a group seeking a commune-type utopia and founding a distinct sub-culture.

"Social Class and Analysis of Social Groups" highlighted two interesting seminars: Mr. J.S. Moore (History Dept., S.B.H.S.) suggested that "Australian society is one whose basic structuring and attitudes are based on those of English society" and "due to its administrative history, emerged with a rigid class structure more firmly drawn than in Britain." Professor S. Encel (University of New South Wales) set about defining class and continued "that class differences are due to education, income, occupation, residence and type of neighbourhood."

American society, it was found, had developed pyramidal structures, presenting difficulties to rising executives. It was stratified dependent on its own ways of classifying people, etc. In American society, the importance of "black power" becomes comprehensible in light of the interrelation of disunity, impotence and alienation of the negro as an individual.

"Social Change" included industrialization and urbanism. Dr. Brownlea (Macquarie University), presented India as an example of traditional and modern societies existing together. "Traditional Society," he felt, "was changing the least whilst changing the most."

"Tribalism" was considered in a topical discussion about Biafra. Studies were made of the economic, political, and social situations of the Nigerian tribes while a comparison to Vietnam proved highly interesting. On the idea of "Urbanization" Geoff May suggested landmarks and pitfalls of future society such as waste, consumption, advertising and selling, and vanishing natural resources.

Combined with consumption and waste, Phil Bear outlined contributing factors, sources, and statistics connected with the environmental crisis of "Air Pollution."

As societies develop and change, measures are sought aiding those who are handicapped, disabled or poor. Mr. B. Hodge (History Master, S.B.H.S.) led a seminar on "The Welfare State", maintaining that "in practice the Welfare State tries to help small income earners and reduce poverty pockets." He presented the scheme's advantages and disadvantages, and suggested "that it can be criticized for working wives, inefficiency (such as patent medicines, hand in hand with a National Health Service), abuse (of hospital facilities by old people taking a winter holiday), and for not solving problems of the employers and employees."

In any changing society "Problems in Education", "Religion", and "Attitudes to Sex", manifest themselves. From the Dept. of Education, Mr. N. Jenkins emphasized "that teachers are educating children in a present that they themselves do not understand." He suggested "that in any curriculum, nothing should be added without an equal amount being deleted."

Father Peter Cantwell defined religion as "a psychological necessity as well as the equilibrium of life". He presented current problems in religion such as "the collapse of traditional religion" and "that religion should not be afraid of changing or refining its values."

Mr. W. Jarvis (University of New South Wales) delivered a well defined lecture on "Attitudes to Sex", indicating that current, liberal attitudes to permissiveness in society were due "to such factors as 'an adolescent revolution', 'the mass media', 'the declining authority of the church' and 'social institutions', and what he termed, the contraceptive revolution"

Voting systems, the function and importance of elections, and how democratic our political system is, were examined by Mr. T. Matthews (Sydney University) in the discussion on "Political Sociology".

"Current Issues" involves such topics as "Drugs and Alcoholism", "Family and Adolescent Problems" and "The Needs, Roles, and Responsibilities of the Individual."

Mr. W. Troy (Therapist, Langton Clinic) examined "Drugs and Alcoholism" and found that "a young group persists in taking drugs, while an 'oldy group' is drinking alcohol." At the time of printing, the two last-named seminars were yet to be held. However, their guest speakers were to be respectively Miss S. Byatt (Counsellor) and Dr. J. Wylie (Sydney University).

This report is but a very brief summary of this year's initial course. However, I must stress the value that this prototype course has had for the participants. As well as stimulating their thoughts and interests, it provided a most interesting and successful development in their individual viewpoints.

On behalf of everybody concerned this year, I would like to thank Mr. Shortle for his time, for the enthusiasm he has devoted to the course, and the inestimable stimulus his course provided for those interested students.

We, of 6th Form, appreciate his inception, not only as a preparation for the General Studies examination, but also, and this is most important, making education truly enjoyable and worthwhile.

Societas Academica Sydneyensis

Approximately five years ago, the Societas Academica Sydneyensis was formed. Membership was restricted to fifth and sixth form pupils and therefore it had little impact on the life of the School. This year the Societas has been re-formed with a wider basis for membership. The aims remain the same, however, and to fulfil these aims, several sub-committees have been set up.

The Societas is the only academic society in the history of this School. Its aims are to promote academic studies by making them more enjoyable and interesting. In the early years of the School there was no need for any such organization—the School was an academic institution, outside interests were subordinate, and to remain at School a pupil had to prove his worth. Gradually the sporting aspect of School life grew and School spirit became solely a matter, in the eyes of many, of attending a football match in School uniform. Today it is one of the more pleasing features of this School to notice that School spirit is a far more comprehensive phenomenon. The role of the Societas in the School today is to give some indication as to the continuing academic traditions of the School. The Societas adopts a positive approach to its activities, benefiting both Societas members and the School as a whole.

To do this, the Societas has selected several fields in which it has been thought some effort should be spent. The most obvious field is drama—here we would be engaged in an activity which would do a great deal to further the aims of the Societas and which would give some benefit to outside members of the School. A sub-committee has been established and is working towards staging a production in 1971. Another field in which the Societas is working is that of correspondence—in Latin—with schools in Europe. This is a revival of the idea (only recently dropped) of Latin as the 'lingua franca' of the world. The Societas has also devoted some of its energy towards the study of Virgil. Virgil is the foremost Latin poet, yet he is studied very little in schools—much less than he deserves.

The Societas is thus giving several interested boys a solid grounding in the work of a poet who was regarded for a very long time as an essential part of a person's education. Other committees are either being considered or are in the stages of formation. The most important of these is the committee for learning Sanskrit.

All this is being done to contribute to the atmosphere of Sydney High School, so that our greatness shall be measured not only in quantity but also in quality. The Societas Academica is attempting to engage some of the potential in the school for the benefit of individual boys and, it is to be hoped, for the School as a whole.

Sixth Form Field Excursions, 1970

This year most of the Sixth Form boys who do Geography participated in three field trips. These trips were a visit to the Australian Glass Manufacturers in Redfern, a trip to the South Coast where we visited the Australian Iron and Steel Works at Port Kembla, a Dairy Co-operative in the Jamberoo Valley and a dairy farm at Gerringong. The final trip was to the Bluebow Soft Drink Company in Redfern.

These field trips are an important part of the Geography course, and there is no better way of studying geography than by observation. It is also a pre-requisite for the Higher School Certificate that a person sitting for Geography at any level must have completed a certain number of days of field study.

The visit to the Australian Glass Manufacturers was made on Thursday, 23rd April, and we were broken into small groups and guided around the factory. Each group saw the many steps in production from raw materials to finished bottles. The complete mechanization of all but the packing stage was of great interest. This trip took half a day and gave us a good insight into the many facets of manufacturing.

The next trip was a two-day excursion to the South Coast on Thursday, 28th and Friday, 29th of May. On Thursday we visited A.I. and S. at Port Kembla. Here we observed the many aspects of production in the morning and were given a free lunch. After lunch we finished our tour of the works. We then returned to the hall where we had a talk by one of the executives of the Company who assured us that the Company was not polluting the environment freely, but was trying, successfully, to cut down the pollution. He told us this because he had heard that we were asking our guides many questions about pollution at A.I. and S. We then moved on to a motel in Kiama where we spent the night in an enjoyable way, most going to bed rather late, some not at all. The next morning we rose at 5.30 a.m., many wishing they had allocated more time for sleep on the previous night. We boarded the bus and went to a dairy farm at Gerringong, where we saw the cows being milked. We then went back to the motel for breakfast. Following breakfast the group left for an inspection of a Dairy Co-operative in the Jamberoo Valley. Here we saw the milk treated and loaded on trucks to be carried to Sydney. We then went back to the dairy farm and inspected the rest of the farm, questioning the farmer on many aspects of his work. We then headed for home, completing a very successful and enjoyable trip.

The last trip we did was to the Bluebow Company in Redfern on Thursday, 18th August. There we saw the production and bottling of soft drink and the many operations that are involved.

The Sixth Form pupils who went on these trips would especially like to thank Mr. D. Shortle, who organized these trips for us and made them the successes that they were. We would also like to thank Mr. P. Brown, who assisted Mr. Shortle and accompanied us on our trips.

Austcare

President: Lucien Larkin; Chairman: Ray Turner; Hon. Secretary: Paul Capewell; Hon. Treasurer: Justin Hutchinson; Social Co-ordinator: Vincent Larkin.

The beginning of the year saw the formation of a new charity committee within the School—the S.H.S. AUSTCARE Committee. This AUSTCARE Student Committee is one of the many school branches of the N.S.W. AUSTCARE Students' Association, the official student body of Australians Care for Refugees.

The aims of the AUSTCARE Students' Association and the S.H.S. AUSTCARE Committee are to further understanding of the problem of refugees, thus motivating the annual AUSTCARE Appeal, and to provide cultural entertainment for youth at reduced prices, thus raising money indirectly for world refugees.

This year several excellent functions have been held, raising about $80.00 to aid starving refugees. They included several theatre parties, one of these being to the Charity Premiere of 'Julius Caesar'. The quality of all functions held was outstanding, and they were enjoyed by all. As well as this, an Appeal in the Elizabeth Bay area, organized by Lucien Larkin, and backed by members of the Committee, raised $400.00.

The State Executive of the AUSTCARE Students' Association is at the moment actively engaged in planning a Festival of Films, to include many of the literary classics, for First Term, 1971. An essential function also of the student body is the education of members on the subject of the refugee problem in such places as Vietnam, Biafra, Cambodia and Peru.

This year Sydney High School created a record within the AUSTCARE Students' Association by having four of its pupils elected to positions on the State Executive Council of that body. Lucien Larkin was re-elected N.S.W. State President of the Association. Ray Turner was elected Chairman of the Education and News Committee, Vincent Larkin as Chairman of the Social Committee, and Justin Hutchinson as a member of the Social Committee.

The S.H.S. AUSTCARE Committee meets fortnightly on Thursdays at lunchtime, in Room 8, and an invitation is extended to all interested pupils to attend. The meetings are both interesting and informative.

It seems that the year ahead will be a promising one, thanks to the support of all our members and friends. We would particularly like to thank the Headmaster and members of Staff for their kind practical and moral support in the establishment of the S.H.S. AUSTCARE Committee, and in the achievement of its aims.

Electronics Club

The Electronics Club has about 35 regular members, ranging in age from thirteen to seventeen. The Club provides graded instruction through the Youth Radio Club Scheme section of the Wireless Institute of Australia. Since the club's inception three members have gained their United Amateur Operators Certificate of Proficiency with the P.M.G.

Many members have completed Y.R.C.S. exams and there has been a heavy call on notes as provided by the Y.R.C.S. Following the participation in examinations and other activities the Club has received an award by the Institute of Radio and Electrical Engineers (I.R.E.E.) as the best school radio club in New South Wales.

Apart from the theory and practical construction carried out by club members, many have participated in special field days held by the W.I.A. Late in 1969 an open day was held at the W.I.A. Head Office at North Sydney where "Ham Radio and T.V. Stations" were demonstrated, as well as various constructional techniques.

A field day was held at Dural earlier this year. Many boys had constructed "sniffers" which they used to locate hidden transmitters around the countryside.

Recently twenty-five members have been constructing the latest in amplifiers using integrated circuits and printed circuit techniques. This sort of activity reflects both the competence of Club members and their enthusiasm.

Committee of Nine

At Sydney High or, indeed, at any other school, great emphasis is placed on the passing of examinations, and on the playing of sport. Interests in Current Affairs, the Arts, and any other subjects not catered for in the school situation, are not fully expressed.

In recognition of this problem, the Committee of Nine was founded in mid-1969. It aims to foster, maintain, and strengthen the interests—other than those strictly pertaining to sport and examinations—of the students at Sydney High. The Committee of Nine hopes to accomplish this by the organization of various ventures which would appeal to such interests. Discussion groups, seminars, lectures, and a number of classical music and pop concerts have been held to date. Such Committee of Nine functions are open to all students at Sydney High. The number of students attending these functions has shown that the Committee of Nine is filling a very real need within Sydney High.

The third term is, traditionally, the time for the more ambitious ventures of the school year. Similar functions to those already mentioned will be organized. In addition feature and documentary films will be screened as they become available to the Committee.

The officers of the Committee in 1970 are as follows:

Chairman: Dudley Ling; Vice-chairman: Peter Brownlee; Secretary: Justin Hutchinson.

The Committee of Nine would like to express its thanks to Mr. L. Booth who has advised and assisted the Committee since its foundation.

P.B.

Interact Club

Office bearers elected for 1969–70 were: President: Mark Gerber, Vice-President: David Luscombe, Secretary: Ross Day, Treasurer: Ian Chrichton.

The past year has seen the Interact Club continue its work in the School of fulfilling its motto, "Service Above Self". The membership of the Club has been approximately twenty boys, but these twenty boys have achieved a large amount to help people in the community less fortunate than ourselves. What has been done has been made possible because everyone in the Club got in and did his share of work. As in previous years the willing workers in the Club were those boys who were also very busy in many other activities within the School.

The first project for the Interact year was in 1969 when the Club published the Football Magazine for the 14th year. This was a successful undertaking, $60.00 being raised (later donated to charity). A typewriter was bought by the Club and this enabled us to produce the Magazine without using a school typewriter. The next activity the Club was involved in was the School Fete at which the Club ran a raffle and operated five stalls—Gem Store, Coffee Shop, Football Throw, Dart Throw and Record Bar. These stalls raised just under $200.00, which went to the P. and C. Association.

Among the other activities held were a number of basketball games during lunchtimes in the Gymnasium, involving members of Staff, the Girls' School and the Prefects. These games raised about $40.00. A very successful pop concert was held in the hall one lunchtime and $65.00 was raised. A number of films were shown in the hall during lunchtimes and these raised about $20.00. A magazine for the G.P.S. Regatta was published the week before the Regatta, and this raised about $10.00.

The culmination of the Club's activities was on the 4th of May, when the President, Mark Gerber, presented a cheque for $150.00 to the Multiple Sclerosis Society at a School Assembly. This society treats people who suffer from an incurable disease, and they assist in the rehabilitation of many patients. Another donation was made a few weeks later to help the Peruvian earthquake victims. The $50.00 donation expressed in a small way the concern for the people involved in this tragedy. The donation was made through the Australian Red Cross. Letters in appreciation were received from both the Multiple Sclerosis Society and the Red Cross.

The Club would like to thank all the people who helped to make this Interact year a great success. We would especially like to thank Mr. M. Stevens of King's Cross Rotary Club (the Interact Club's sponsors) and Mr. J. C. Murphy from the Staff, who both attended all our meetings and guided us in our activities throughout the year. We would also like to thank the Headmaster, Mr. Callaghan, and the Girls' School Headmistress, Miss Moore, for their willing co-operation with us as we arranged our activities within the School.

Hill End Excursion, 1970

A party of 43 boys moved off in a motor coach on Friday, 3rd of April 1970. The expedition was ably led by Mr. B. Hodge, with Messrs. A. Anderson, J. Moore, J. Fraser, and M. Whiting assisting. During the trip we stayed at Sofala on Friday night and at Hill End camping ground on the remaining two nights. Mike Jackson, our coach driver, braved all to stay with both bus and boys throughout the trip.

On the journey to Sofala Mr. Anderson gave us a commentary on the geology of the Sydney Basin, on the different types of rock to be found, and on the formation of the Blue Mts.

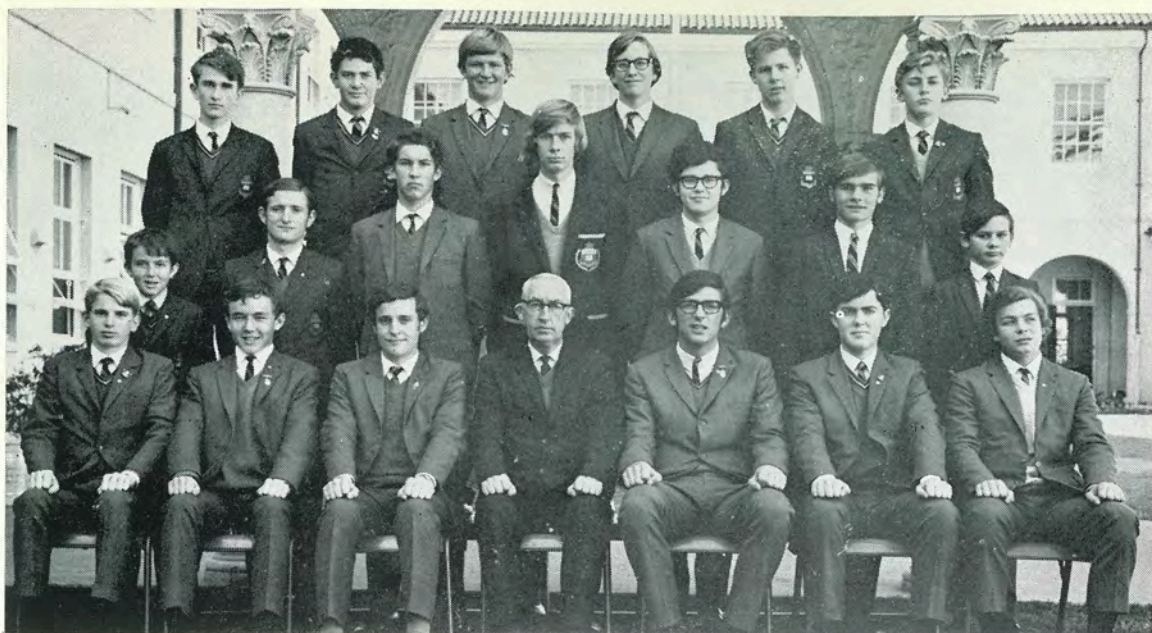

Our first major stop was at Kelso Church (near Bathurst), built in 1825 and one of the oldest churches west of the mountains. Archdeacon Ellis, the Rector, gave us a most informative commentary on the history of the Church. Once again the boys of High are indebted to him.

On Saturday we visited several places of interest associated with the Hill End area:—the roasting pits (which broke up gold bearing quartz by heat); Merlin Lookout (named after a local photographer who documented the history of Hill End), and Hawkins Hill (which was the site of the fabulous "Golden Quarter Mile") and on Sunday the site of Tambaroora.

After breakfast on Sunday we went gold-panning. Most of the boys panned a few specks (or 'colours') and made enough to keep themselves in soft drink for a week. The panning was demonstrated by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ellis, and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Worland. The boys appreciated the time given up by these good folk as a contribution to the success of the expedition.

During the course of the trip the boys were privileged to have the company of Mr. H. Hodge, retired headmaster and local historian. Mr. Hodge's informative talks on the Hill End and Tambaroora districts (and his entertaining 'ghost stories') were thoroughly enjoyed by all the boys.

On the return trip the party stopped at "Maitland Camp" where Mr. R. Hodge showed the boys something of life on a western sheep station. For all the boys "Maitland Camp", steeped in character and real "western" atmosphere, was the highlight of the return journey. Our thanks to Roll Hodge for once again contributing to the success of High's expedition.

Our thanks go to the many local citizens who helped us in many ways, and especially to Mr. Norm Cross who provided entertainment of a form seen all too rarely in modern Australia. Mr. Cross provided the highlight of our enjoyable evening campfires. Every night after tea, a camp fire was held and some boys put on entertaining items. In one Mr. Whiting managed to get himself soaked, the pupils responsible being Parr, Copp, and Tabrett. There was also the school assembly, by now established as a tradition on the Hill End trip. The boys involved in this included particularly Robert Middleton and Ian Parr.

Because of the very full itinerary, we did not have time to cook our own meals, so a small party of senior boys, capably led by Mr. Fraser, cooked all our meals for us and we are very grateful to them for performing this onerous task.

There was only one incident which detracted from the spirit of the whole trip. One pupil broke his arm and this resulted in a fifty mile drive to Bathurst hospital with Mr. Hodge and two other boys.

Our thanks must go to Mr. B. Hodge for organizing the trip and conducting it so efficiently, and to the members of staff who assisted him.

H. W. Baker History Conference, Bowral, May 1970

The Conference took place during the May holidays (Sunday 10th to Friday 15th May). Three boys from High, John Sutton, Paul Huxtable, and Andrew Field, attended. We arrived by train at Bowral station and were taken by bus to the Chevalier College, which is some three miles to the south of Bowral.

After settling in on the Sunday night, the camp was opened on the Monday morning. Lectures then began, and a daily routine was soon achieved; we were aroused in the morning by pop music played over a loudspeaker, with breakfast at eight o'clock. Lectures commenced at nine thirty a.m., with lectures, discussion periods and forums continuing for the remainder of the day. Tea was at six thirty p.m. and this was followed by the evening's entertainment which varied from films, such as "The Rise of the Dictators" (included three separate films on Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin, and "China 1800-1967" to an Oxford Debate titled "History is Bunk" and a dance which was a great success.

The topics at the Conference varied from "Mussolini and Fascist Foreign Policy" to "Relations and Attitudes among the Christians, Jews, and Moslems during the Crusades". All were presented by university professors and lecturers, and thus the standard of the Conference was quite outstanding.

The Conference was not a coaching course; only four out of thirteen lectures were on topics studied in school. Rather the Conference is aimed at the student who is genuinely interested in the study of History in its manifold aspects.

The week was a worthwhile experience; it opened history to its real worth, not just a subject to be added to an examination certificate. We came away conscious of a fuller experience of history, and especially its relations with sociology and philosophy. The Conference's main theme was "Man's Humanity/Inhumanity to Man"—history has much to teach us!

History Excursion to Wiseman's Ferry

The group left Sydney High at 10.00 a.m. aboard a Cottrill's Clipper Coach and headed towards Windsor via Parramatta. The first stop was at Second Ponds Creek where Mr. Moore described the "Battle of Vinegar Hill". This battle began on the evening of the 4th of March 1804 when a group of Irish convicts on the Government Farm at Castle Hill escaped and rallied the large Irish convict population in the area in a rebellion against the British. Under their leaders, Cunningham and Johnston, the convicts marched towards Green Hills (Windsor) where they intended to gather further support. On the way they were overtaken at Vinegar Hill by a detachment of troops from Parramatta. A brief "battle" ensued, with approximately fifteen convicts being killed. Many more, including the leaders, were later executed.

We then moved on to Windsor where we inspected Windsor Court House and St. Matthew's Church. In the graveyard of the Church is to be found the tombstone of Andrew Thompson, a noted emancipist during the period of Bligh and Macquarie. Mr. Moore told us something of Thompson's early life in Scotland (he was transported to New South Wales at the age of nineteen for a crime in which his guilt is of considerable doubt), and of his spectacular career as a constable and merchant in the colony. Thompson died in 1810 from the effects of immersion, he being noted for his bravery during the devastating floods of 1809. Thompson left a considerable amount of money to Macquarie, and Macquarie ordered a most elaborate memorial in the form of a testament to be placed over his grave. All the boys inspected this with considerable interest.

After a stop for morning tea at Windsor we then moved on to Wiseman's Ferry where we had lunch in a beautiful picnic area beside the river. After lunch Mr. Moore told us something of the life of Solomon Wiseman, after whom the Ferry is named. Wiseman (who had his sentence of death commuted to transportation for fourteen years) arrived in the colony with his wife and family and, like Thompson, had a meteoric rise to wealth and social eminence as a Hawkesbury settler (he died in 1838). After crossing the punt at the Ferry the group then moved up the old Great North Road, probably one of the outstanding examples of convict road building in New South Wales. At a spot called "Hangman's Rock" near the Road we heard something of the life of the ordinary convict, a few of whom ended up dangling on a rope dropped through the rock.

The boys moved back to the bus waiting at the Ferry for the return trip to Sydney. This passed without event, undoubtedly due to the fact that we had put in a very full day.

We wish to thank Mr. Moore for conducting us on the excursion, for his organization, and for his dialogues on the various points of interest.

I.S.C.F. Report

The I.S.C.F. is a non-denominational organization which provides an opportunity for seven-day a week Christians to meet and discuss experiences and learn from one another. General Meetings are held on Friday lunchtimes in Room 6, while Prayer Meetings are held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings in Room 20 and Senior Meetings on Tuesdays at Lunchtime in Room 6. An added attraction has supplemented the weekly meetings over the last years, and this is the S.G.H.S. I.S.C.F. Meetings on Thursdays which senior boys have been permitted to attend.

Perhaps the most outstanding event this year has been the Kingsford Region I.S.C.F. Houseparty, organized by S.B.H.S. About 60 boys and girls from schools in our district attended the camp at Narrabeen for one week-end. The Speaker was Rev. A. Langstaff and the message was exciting and powerful.

We would like to thank Miss Noller for her help in organizing the Houseparty and for her tremendous assistance throughout the year, and Mr. McLeod and Miss Page for their continued help.

The last year has seen a particular strengthening in the senior section of the group, but in the future we hope to reach out with the message of Christ to the junior school. This message is one of power, joy, peace and love, but also judgement, and thus the I.S.C.F. feels compelled to present to the School the saving knowledge of Christ.

Father and Son Dinner

This year's Father and Son Dinner, an annual event, was a well attended function which proved to be thoroughly enjoyable.

This year, in lieu of the normal Form V play, the Music Department provided the bulk of the entertainment, with the Choral Group playing varied items. The Choir entertained the audience with a recital of the "Daniel Jazz". The Occasional Address this year was given by Mr.

Frank Bennett, who enlightened the audience on some of the finer points of cricket, with an inside story of the last India-South Africa Cricket Tour.

All present appreciated both the work involved in preparing for such an occasion, especially in the entertainment and catering areas. Thanks, as always, must go to the Ladies' Auxiliary, who some how managed to again serve some three-hundred men—no mean feat.

K. J. Andrews Library

In the past few months we have benefited from the Commonwealth Grant to school libraries. This has taken the form of a grant of $1000 for the purchase of new books, plus the inclusion of audio visual aids for the use of staff and pupils. Senior students may now "book time" to listen to recordings or tapes of the texts they are studying and in some cases, commentaries. We have commenced a small collection of cassettes which we hope to extend in the near future.

The library is open from before 8.00 a.m. to 3.30 p.m. each day. With the continuing support of the P. & C., our bookstock has now exceeded 13,000 and we appreciate their generosity in providing funds.

Speech Night, 1969

The 86th Annual Speech Night of the School was held on the 9th December, 1969, in the Great Hall. Mr. W.R. Hetherington, Area Secondary Inspector, Central Metropolitan Directorate, acted as chairman for the evening.

The Honourable Sir Gordon Wallace in the Occasional Address discussed the unique role of youth in our modern society. He reassured the audience that the youth of our society are fundamentally the same as those of previous generations. Sir Gordon reminded us that brotherhood is an important quality in our lives, and that it will be even more so in the uncertain years ahead. The attaining of peace in our world, he pointed out, was in our hands, but that if we were to misuse our varied capacities we would see the breaking down of our society.

Sir Gordon, President of the Court of Appeal, went on to say that he firmly believed that the basic principles of the constitution and of law should be taught in senior forms in the secondary schools. He said that this would be the better equip young men and women completing their secondary education to use their democratic privileges in our society.

Referring to tradition, Sir Gordon reminded the audience that the virtue of tradition lay in the fact that tradition, by its very nature, encouraged worthwhile change. All worthwhile traditions, he pointed out, must be subject to constant review.

The Headmaster, in his Annual Report, referred to the many activities in a great variety of fields which took place during 1969. The Headmaster then went on to say that he looked forward with confidence to 1970, asking for the support of all who were sincerely interested in the school.

An enjoyable evening of music was presented by the Brass Band conducted by Mr. C.D. Goodchild, and the School Military Band and School Choir, both under the baton of Mr. F.R.J. Murphy.

Careers

According to statistics, every person changes his job six times during his life. Apart from anything else, this fact illustrates the great need for people, especially young people, to obtain advice and to give careful thought to their future career.

Consider for a moment the disadvantages of a man changing jobs six times. In general, as a result of the transition, he will suffer a loss in earning power, will fall to the bottom of the promotional ladder, will be inefficient for a considerable period of time, and will require extra on-the-job training. And all this because he is unsatisfied in his job and seeks greater happiness and satisfaction elsewhere. Much of this dissatisfaction can be avoided. With a little effort, a little advice and a little knowledge, he can make a judicious choice and can find a satisfying career without the need for so much inefficient experimentation.

The School Careers Advisor is available to students for this very purpose. He helps them make a decision, he informs them about the various careers, he arranges testing at the Vocational Guidance Bureau, and interviews with the Commonwealth Employment Service, and finally, he gives information about the various scholarships and cadetships available.

Unfortunately, neither the Careers Advisor nor close associates, can tell a person the career he will and should follow. This is a personal decision and can only be made properly after long and careful consideration. The school leaver should find out as much as possible about several jobs, compare the opportunities and make the decision from amongst those with the greater appeal.

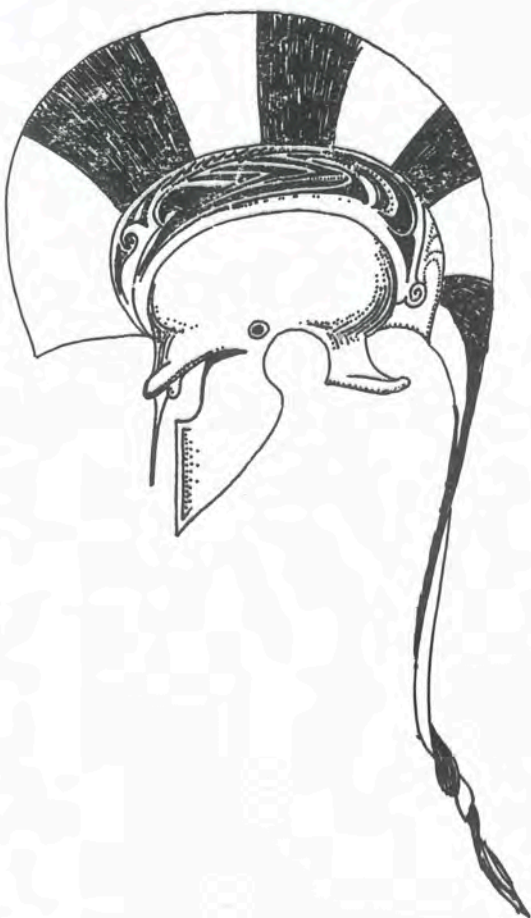

It is no good doing this sort of research in December of each year. By that time most scholarship applications have closed and most of the good job vacancies have been filled or are in the final stages of selection. It is a process which should begin some time in Third Form or earlier. Boys are then invited to go to the VGB offices for a personal interview.

At the end of the year boys are given free, a book called "Background to Careers" which is intended to set minds thinking and to provide information about a large range of careers. In the Careers Advisors' Office, and in the Library pamphlets and books are available on specific careers and provide as much information as possible short of actual experience.

Boys are further urged to attend a Careers Night in September, generally in the Lower Town Hall.

These are some of the ways in which boys are strongly encouraged to avail themselves of these avenues of information.

Debating, 1970

This year, as usual, the School entered teams in both the C.H.S. and G.P.S. competitions. The 6th Form team of Anthony Cordato, Les Szekely, Craig Gibbons, and Ian Coss had a rather disappointing season, failing to win a debate in the C.H.S. Hume-Barbour competition, or the G.P.S. series. Unfortunately these failures are no real indication of their abilities as senior debaters, for all the debates were lost by the narrowest of margins. Their one success came in the School vs Old Boys Debate held at the High Club on Wednesday 8th July. David Gorney substituted for Craig Gibbons after Craig had fallen victim to the 'flu epidemic. The debate was on the topic "That Caesar alone should be the judge of what is rendered unto Caesar", with the School team in the affirmative. After an entertaining and humorous debate the adjudicator, Mr. Cady, decided in favour of the School team.

The most successful of the School teams was the 5th Form team of John Sutton, John Wolifson, Peter Wertheim, and Dudley Ling. They are undefeated in the G.P.S. competition. In the Karl Kramp competition the boys won through to the final against Epping, defeating such teams as Hurlstone Agricultural High and Sydney Technical High in the preliminaries. To reach the final of the Karl Kramp competition, considering that it involved some 65 schools in the metropolitan area, was no small achievement. The final was held in the State Office Block Auditorium. The topic was "That we have come to the end of the road", and in fact the result proved that the final in more ways than one was to be the end of the road. The adjudicators (by a 2-1 vote) gave the result to Epping High. To reach the final of such a competition is no mean feat, and the School can look forward to some good debates involving these boys in the Hume-Barbour competition next year.

I cannot let this opportunity pass without saying something about each of the boys in the 5th Form team.

John Sutton is first speaker and captain of the team. John has an incisive mind, is fluent in his presentation of ideas, and in every debate this year has provided his colleagues with a solid basis for the building of an argument.

John initiated a series of lunchtime meetings at which the team analyzed its performances and discussed ideas related to some of the topics used in the debating competitions. John is probably the best debater in the School from the point of view of the sustained development of ideas.

Second speaker for the team is John Wolifson. John has the potential to be a brilliant debater. Unfortunately his style of debating, which calls for an audience appreciative of an intellectual wit, is not encouraged in N.S.W. It can only be deplored that such a brilliant speaker cannot find in our present system of debating the means to give a great many people the enjoyment of his verbal talent. Nevertheless, John has shown that debating is not only an argument, but more importantly, the presentation of an argument.

The third speaker for the team is Peter Wertheim. Peter has carried out the difficult role of third speaker with an effectiveness rarely seen among schoolboy debaters. Peter has developed in his manner during the season, with the problem of nerves well and truly overcome by the time of the final.

The 4th Form team has suffered from the need to "experiment" with a number of debaters in order to arrive at the best possible team for next year. The team lost only one of its C.H.S. debates (against S.G.H.S.), but did not meet with success in the G.P.S. competition. Morris Swift, Gary Armstrong, Harry Hudak, Mark Morgan, Peter Kempe, Max Willow, and Paul Simmons have all taken part in debates and from these boys a team will be selected for the Karl Kramp competition in 1971. The 4th Form team has the distinction of being the only debating team in the history of this School to lose a debate on a suspected broken ankle, proof that there is more to debating than the mere application of the mind.

As Debating Master I have appreciated particularly the co-operation of all the School debaters throughout the season. When it has been necessary for the boys to represent High at another school they have conducted themselves in a manner which can only bring great credit to this School.

Finally, I would like to thank the boys from 4A who on numerous occasions organized the Hall in preparation for debates, and also the parents who assisted with the supper in the debate against Newington. I am indebted to Mr. Whitehurst for his advice and assistance throughout the year.

Music Report

A number of parents remarked after the School Band Contest (staged at Sydney High on the 12th July) how much instrumental work in Schools had mushroomed in the past few years. They were impressed, not only with the sheer numbers of students involved, but also with the quality of their playing. For where there was virtually nothing done in this field fifteen years ago, now a good number of high schools and primary schools in this state can boast at least a brass or military band, or an orchestra—some all three. All this is to the good since it gives students the opportunity for aesthetic enjoyment within a group situation which imposes its own discipline—the necessity of attending rehearsals regularly, playing in time with everyone else, maintaining silence while the conductor explains a point in the Score and so on.

Sydney High's achievements in the field of instrumental music are therefore typical of a process which is to some extent State-wide. However, this is not absolutely the case, since few schools can boast a military band, brass band and orchestra. Nor could most schools afford to run them; the School has spent almost four hundred dollars in instrument repairs alone this year, and the problems involved in administration would in most places prove insurmountable. The lesson to be learned is clear—pupils attending the School should strive to make best use of the extensive opportunities offered them. More importantly, they should be helped to see their situation in perspective: for often they tend to underrate the things around them, and through unwarranted criticism destroy the enthusiasm on which such ventures depend.

In every way, the School's instrumental programme has been truly fortunate. Firstly, in terms of the standard of its teaching staff—Mr. C. Goodchild and Mr. P. Kyng in the band movement, Robyn Morris and lately Miss H. Dawidowicz in the orchestral field, and numerous others who have played a lesser role in the School's development. Secondly, from the point of view of the generosity of the Parents' and Citizens' Association and the Department of Education for their grants of instruments, the stock of instruments being now valued at over ten thousand dollars. Finally, we have been fortunate as to the extent of pupil and parent support.

All these factors have contributed to the development of music in the School to a stage which would have been undreamed of ten or fifteen years ago. The more so, since 1970 represents a high point in the School's musical history: the Military Band has been placed on a firm footing, the Orchestra has been revitalized thanks to the hard work of Miss Dawidowicz, and the Brass Band continues to uphold its previous standards. Needless to say the amount of activity here has borne considerable fruit. The Orchestra performed at the Instrumental Festival for Primary and Secondary Schools, Sydney Town Hall on June 30th and July 1st, and both the Brass Band and the Military Band acquitted themselves well at the School Band Contest mentioned earlier. Not that mere participation is the only outcome of all this; the thing that one cannot fail to overlook is the sort of music being played by such groups. Not just the "pot-boilers" of yesterday, but music of real worth—Copland, Mendelssohn, Dvorak, Bach: a tribute to pupils and teachers alike and, I hope, an indication of an improvement in the standards of public taste.

In comparison with the sheer volume of instrumental work done in the School, vocal music tends to pale. This should not necessarily be so, but like children with a new toy, we tend to become engrossed in the new and put aside what has always been there. Perhaps once instrumental music settles down the two will be seen in perspective again. Even so, achievements in the vocal music area have been reasonable ("Daniel Jazz" at the Father and Son Dinner; two Songs for trebles at the Welcome and Reunion Night), and further engagements are envisaged for third term.

Music in the School is undoubtedly progressing; at High we are certain of this. But what of the future? Can we see the situation arising where instead of struggling with instrumental playing, before and after school and during recesses, it were made part of the curriculum. What changes might be witnessed if this were so? Teachers able to cope with an already overloaded programme, pupils able to choose band, choir, orchestra, etc, or musical appreciation. Idealism or the situation in ten years time . . . ?

Orchestra Report

Until the beginning of this year our School Orchestra was sadly lacking in activity, and thousands of dollars worth of instruments were unused and neglected. However, with the arrival of Miss H. Dawidowicz, a marked revival in the whole musical life of the School has taken place.

The orchestra began twice-weekly practices almost immediately, and extensive recruitment and teaching has brought the Orchestra's numbers up to fifty, with more preparing to join. Only a shortage of instruments, especially violins, violas, and cellos, is hindering further expansion.

On several occasions our School Orchestra has performed in major concerts. Two lunch-time recitals were given in the Hall during second term, and were quite well attended, considering the School has not been accustomed to any really vital musical tradition. The event of the year was, however, when the Orchestra played in the Sydney Town Hall and won the orchestral division competition. Two pieces were played on this occasion. They were "Dance of the Clowns" by Mendelssohn and "Variations on a Shaker Melody from Appalachian Spring" by Copland. The Musicale, held at the end of July, is reported elsewhere in "The Record".

As with the School Brass Band the Orchestra is now arranging for the design and manufacture of an Orchestra lapel badge to be worn by Orchestra members. This is to show that the Orchestra, as much as any other activity in the School, is an integral part of the School and so rightly asks, and has received, your support.

Although the expansion of the Orchestra is very much due to Miss Dawidowicz, the tremendous effort and dedication of the members of the Orchestra should not go unsung. Only with strenuous rehearsals and hard practice by teacher and pupils alike have the high standards achieved been reached.

Military Band

After a commendable performance at the 1969 Speech Night, the Military Band began in full swing in the first term of 1970, looking forward with confidence to another successful year.

Mr. Murphy then arranged for the Military Band to be taken by Mr. Peter Kyng, Bass Clarinetist in the Sydney Symphony Orchestra. Practising only one morning a week, the Military Band did not expect to do well at the N.S.W. Junior Band Championships. However, after an outstanding performance, we walked off with third prize in "Hymn", third prize in "Selection", and first prize in "The March".

The Military Band mainly consists of Clarinets and Saxophones, of which we have very few. However, as this report goes to press, two new Saxophones are due to arrive at the School, and this will undoubtedly strengthen the Band.

The group has a particularly strong Brass Section led by B. Evans, while S. Couani is Solo Clarinetist.

Our thanks must go to Mr. Peter Kyng for the help and time he has devoted to us. It has certainly been rewarded.

R.M.

Brass Band

This popular facet of school life has this year led a precarious existence. Few new members have been recruited which has meant that although the existing players are efficient their numbers are not large enough to make it a really good Brass Band. The players have, however, enjoyed playing at practices from week to week.

Our first engagement was at Sydney Girls High School when we played at the official opening of their new wing. The band was asked by the Deputy Headmaster to play at a number of school assemblies and the pieces were enjoyed by the boys. During April we played at a contest in connection with the Captain Cook Bi-Centenary celebrations but gained no places. The usual programme was played by the band for the school Anzac Day ceremony. In the Australian Junior Brass Band Championships held in July, the Brass Band had little success gaining a third place in the "Hymn" Section but it must be emphasised that the standard in this contest is very high.

At the School Musicale and the School Speech Night the Band put up creditable performances. Mr. C.D. Goodchild, our conductor, was the man who kept the band together this year. We thank him very much for his efforts. With only one 6th form player leaving the band this year (Mark Gerber) the band should be quite a strong group next year.

P.G.

Choir

This year the Sydney High School Choir was most fortunate in that a number of talented First Formers joined the Choir. After weeks of arduous preparation and rehearsal the Choir was ready for their debut of 1970, the "Daniel Man Jazz" at the Father and Son Dinner. The Choir then went back into training for the Musicale, and once again sang the very popular "Daniel Man Jazz", which met with a most appreciative response from a large audience.

This year there were only three Second Formers in the Choir, and this has made it difficult for the First Formers to draw on the experience of senior Choir members. The Choir would like to thank Mr. F. Murphy for his superb management and Miss Dawidowicz for her co-operation; without their efforts the Choir could not look back on such a successful year.

Musicale, 1970

At the beginning of the year instrumental musical activity was at a standstill. On the arrival of Miss Dawidowicz new life was injected into this aspect of music at the School. Since her arrival the numbers have risen to well over fifty and the prospects for the future are very bright. The success of the Orchestra within this short space of time has been, to say the least, remarkable. The culmination of the immense effort involved in this renaissance came with a Musicale, held towards the end of second term.

The organization for the Musicale was indicative of the enthusiasm with which Miss Dawidowicz approaches Music at High; she was capably supported in this by the three stage managers, Ross McPherson, Ian Madden, and Phillip Barr.

Due to the petrol dispute the Musicale had to be postponed for one week, and further setbacks were suffered when Glynn Gill, lead flutist, became ill and had to miss the Musicale. Tim Gerber, violinist, broke his arm, and he also was forced out of the Musicale. Mr.

Goodchild was yet another casualty, and this necessitated Mr. Murphy taking over his role, which he did most capably. The presence of these "substitutes" in no way detracted from the standard of the music played; special thanks must go to Manual Aivaliotes, who stepped in to take Glynn Gill's place in the trio sonata.

Mr. Booth, Mr. Copley, and Mr. Lucan-Roberts all gave valuable assistance in many aspects of organization, especially Mr. Booth, who made arrangements with Andronicus to have coffee served at interval.

A surprisingly large audience of over three hundred people gathered on the night. They were to hear a vast array of items, covering a large variety of composers and musical styles.

The Brass Band gave a very fine performance under its conductor for the night, Mr. Murphy. There was an arrangement of Dvorak's "New World Symphony", a hymn and a march, and these pieces were played with an enthusiasm usually associated with a more mature Band. This was followed by a creditable performance on the piano by Michael Rodriguez. Next to perform was the School Choir, who gave a rendering of the "Daniel Jazz", to the accompaniment of Mr. Murphy on the piano. This item was obviously enjoyed by all. The next item was a trio sonata by Handel, performed by Manual Aivaliotes on flute, Ian Coss on cello, and Tony Coleman on piano. The Military Band, conducted by Mr. Peter Kyng, played next, and gave a rendition of three items, all expertly pieced together. The response from the audience showed their appreciation of such good playing.

Interval followed, with a brief talk by the Headmaster in which he expressed his thanks to the Music Department and to the pupils who had devoted so much time to preparing for the Musicales.

The second half of the evening began in very lively fashion with one of the 'novelty' items of the evening. A wind, brass and percussion ensemble played Kodaly's "Viennese Musical Clock". This is a tremendously enjoyable piece to play, and was lifted to a high standard of performance by Miss Dawidowicz's excellent conducting. The mood again shifted to Baroque with a bassoon and continuo recital of a Vivaldi sonata. Some very fine playing came from Peter Stern (bassoon), Barry Den (piano), and Richard Waddell (cello). An all-string piece then followed, with a solo cello. The solo cello, played by Ian Coss, received very substantial backing from the string orchestra, which could become a force of its own in the years to come. Contrast was again obvious when, after the serenade, composed by Sammartini, there came an item by an ensemble of seven string players entitled "The Train", which appeared popular with the audience. Stefan Couani gave an accomplished display of musical ability when he played part of Saint-Saen's clarinet sonata, accompanied on the piano by Robert Forrest. The last item for the evening was performed by the full orchestra. Handel's "Overture to the Occasional Oratorio" was first, followed by Prokofiev's "March from the Love of Three Oranges", and the Musicales was completed by the Orchestra's piece for the Town Hall Festival, Copland's "Shaker Variations".

This then was the Musicales for 1970. The Orchestra gave one of its best performances, and the audience's concurring with this was obvious, judging by the sustained applause. The evening was a real success, and was hopefully the beginning of a very fine musical tradition in the School. It was also a fitting end to a wonderful musical year for Sixth Formers, an expression of their gratitude to Miss Dawidowicz for a rewarding and enjoyable time.

S.H.S. Cadet Unit

1970 has seen a number of changes in the staff of the Cadet Unit. Firstly, I would like to extend a personal vote of thanks to Capt. McLeod for commanding the Unit until July, and for the guidance he has given to and the interest he has shown in the affairs of the Unit.

Secondly, a strong word of praise to my Q.M., Lt. A. Anderson, and his excellent Q. Store staff. For a Unit to function, well organized Q work is essential, and Lt. Anderson has carried out most capably the task of running the store.

The C.U.O.'s this year have achieved quite good results. Though possibly too small, the Unit has been commended on various occasions for its turn out and behaviour which is a reflection of the leadership and bearing shown by C.U.O.s and N.C.O.'s. The success of the Annual Camp is due to their enthusiasm and co-operation.

The 1970 Annual Camp, I feel sure, was thoroughly enjoyed by all Unit members. From the shower-parades, to the bomb-throwing at "Dozy Digger", to the barbecue night, all cadets expressed their enthusiasm. I would also like to add a special word of thanks to W.O. II M. Pearce for his expert guidance and help, and also to Major Warren and other members of his staff at 7 Cadet Bn.

I would like to also express a final note of thanks to Major Mills. The officers and cadets of Sydney High wish you all the best in your retirement.

Annual Camp

Annual Camp is the highlight and aim of the Cadet Unit. Its purpose is to teach city lads how to live comfortably and securely in the field. Activities are varied so as to develop interest and a sense of responsibility among the cadets; activities include different shoots, patrols, numerous specialist exercises (Signals, Medicals, and Intelligence) down to the arts of cooking and "bushmanship". The training received at school is designed as preparation for Annual Camp.

Sydney High Cadet Unit can boast of its voluntary nature. It has a proud and glorious history; a history that I would like to see extended. Membership is extended to all lads in the School, especially for those in the junior years.

ANNUAL CADET CAMP

High Honours

The Hon. Mr. Justice Sir Bernard Sugerman

A former Judge of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration, then a Judge of the Supreme Court of New South Wales and the Land and Valuation Court of New South Wales, since 1966 a Judge of Appeal and since 22nd January, 1970, President of the Court of Appeal, and also for some four months of this year Acting Chief Justice of New South Wales, the Hon. Mr. Justice Sir Bernard Sugerman is a distinguished former pupil of Sydney High School.

Bernard Sugerman was born in Sydney on July 5th, 1904, of a Jewish family of limited means. His mother, and later a younger step-brother, died while he was very young and he was brought up by his father, step-mother and grandparents. His father pursued a number of occupations—teaching, clerical work and the making of stained glass windows—before his early death at the age of forty-six.

An only child, he was always encouraged by his father and so learnt to read while he was very young. This was a reflection of his father's strong desire to give his son the best education available, even if it meant some hardship to himself. Sir Bernard went to a number of primary schools, where he felt he gained a very solid basis, both educationally and morally. "Things like spelling, grammar and English composition were very thoroughly rubbed into us in primary school ... there was very little need to teach us those things in High School".

When he was only twelve and a half, Sir Bernard started at Sydney High School in Second Year. Previous to this he had spent First Year at Cleveland Street in order to gain one of the 420 State bursaries. After the more limited Cleveland Street Intermediate High School of that time, Sir Bernard found Sydney High "an excellent school."

The school building at Mary Ann Street, which was originally built for about 150 pupils and about seven classes, now housed about 350 boys and twelve classes or thereabouts. Small classes, such as Greek, were even held in what had been, but a short time before, a washroom. But because the school was still small, the teachers "used to know the boys very well". There were something approaching twenty teachers at the school while Sir Bernard was at Sydney High and he believed them to be "a very fine band of men". Sir Bernard also remembers his early headmaster, Mr. Robert Hinder, the famous headmaster of Maitland High School, who gained a reputation as "a great character" at Sydney High and could sometimes be found in the small asphalt playground "with his whistle, refereeing the football games". Hinder was followed by Mr. Smith, who was a different type of man, and under him the school was very successful academically.

Sir Bernard had varied success at Sydney High. Sport was not important to him largely because he was "always the smallest boy in the class and the youngest boy in the class" and he was more interested in his studies. Although he now was highly appreciative of the value of the two great team sports in the education of boys and the benefit of the dual sporting competition, Sir Bernard felt that there should not be an over-emphasis on the value of success in sport at the expense of other values. His own view is that "no boy should be compelled to play sport if his real talents lie in other directions", but he thinks that this is really a matter for the school and that boys must abide by the school rule in this respect. He believes that "a high status should be attached to those who are scholars" as well as to those who are leaders in sport.

Sir Bernard felt that in his day the prefects "didn't rate very highly in the school's affairs". As to the prefect system in general, while disposed to question whether it was necessary he felt that he was too unacquainted with its working nowadays in the various schools which have it to express any positive opinion about it, and that it might well be possible to organise a system which would be a valuable part of the education of boys.

Academically, Sir Bernard did very well, winning several prizes every year. In his final year he gained a University exhibition and one of the 34 State bursaries to Sydney University. During his High School years he took the general course as opposed to the commercial one. Although there was virtually no choice of subjects he felt that this gave boys "a broad basic education before they started to specialise". Sir Bernard personally preferred this broader approach to the earlier specialisation of the present scheme. However, he thought that the grading system is "on the whole a good thing and is the best way to give the abler boys a chance to move along in class at their own pace". And he feels that the introduction of core courses in art, music and manual work, which were unknown during his education, is an excellent idea.

Sir Bernard was a member of the debating team as well as of the "Record" committee, but during his day there were very few clubs in the school. He applauds the wide range of clubs now operating at Sydney High as a necessary part of education.

The idea of a Law course had always been attractive to Sir Bernard, so after matriculating he became a Law student at Sydney University, and a little later an articled clerk pursuing his University Law School studies part-time. He enjoyed university life in the then small university, taking an active interest in Union debating. He did very well at Law, winning several prizes and concluding his degree by sharing the University Medal in 1925. As there were no opportunities for post-graduate study, Sir Bernard left Sydney University and in 1926 was admitted to the Bar. He also maintained a part-time lectureship at the University and the editorship of the Australian Law Journal, while he built up his practice.

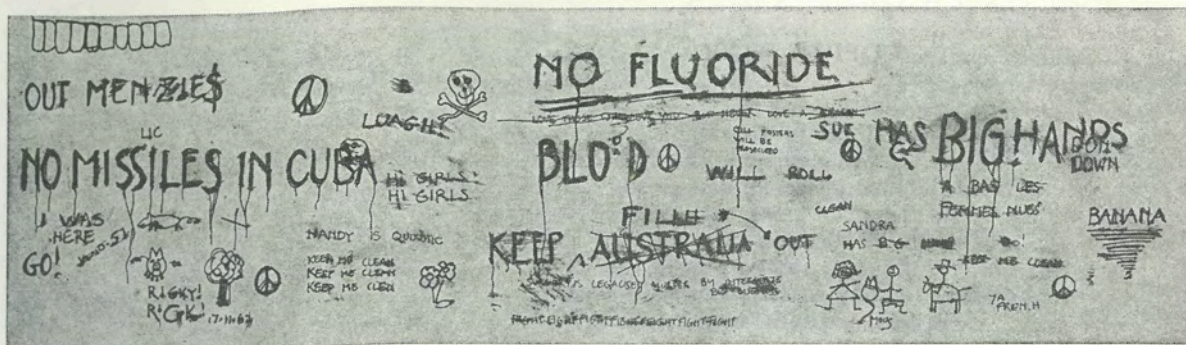

In 1928, Sir Bernard married. He has two sons, both of whom went to Sydney High School. In 1943 he was appointed a K.C. and in 1947 he reached the position of a Judge of the Supreme Court of N.S.W., becoming President of the Court of Appeal this year. Sir Bernard has never disliked his career in Law and, although the work of his present position is at times difficult, he finds it enjoyable.

Sir Bernard sees the Law not as "something that lives in an Ivory Tower" but very much as "concerned with the ordinary doings of average, everyday persons, with the idea of endeavouring to give them justice." But he feels that "it is not always possible to see where complete justice lies. These things have to be worked out by a system which allows for checks and balances and compromises." As a result he feels that demands for hasty changes of the Law, and disregard for legal procedure, are dangerous. Even though the Law "takes time to get up momentum for change" he feels that so many interests and counter-interests are involved that, while there is always scope for improvement and improvement is in fact constantly going on, precipitate and ill-considered change would be unwise. Sir Bernard feels that direct action is not an effective force for the changing of the Law and suggests to young people that they do not disregard the experience and skills of their elders in running the country and in the maintaining of law and order, to which responsibilities they will in their turn, succeed when they have acquired the necessary skills and experience.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Sir Bernard Surgerman was interviewed by John Sutton and Andrew Field.

SPARK TO ASH

Graffiti

Life is like the day
As it rises in the dawn,
(A cold, silent, lifeless dawn).
And builds up into a spark,
An eternal, growing spark.

It's a flame.
Like the fiery and proud sun
It burns and burns
Ablaze !
It erupts like a volcano, a huge inferno,
An eternal, growing blaze.

The weather may change,
Winds may blow,
Hurricanes may growl,
Lightning may strike.
Where is the glory of life now ?
A victim of nature's cycle,
Adrift like a lone raft -
Helpless, fragile, cork in a glass.

It may survive.

The eve has come
Burnished leaves float down to the pavement.
Autumn.
The fire flickers.
Ash.

COPPER WINE

Copper wine flowing free,
Down the slopes to the valley of time's ugly cauldron.
Past the time of wealth and greed, to the green grass, and on
Through the stages of our race,
to the dark and ugly weed,
Where fighting ants are slowly drowned,
in their glorious, wealthy prize.

Copper wine flowing free,
Burnishing man's prosperity.

THE LIGHT

A tiny light shines out,
And from the source a shower of tiny rays of light shine forth,
Illuminating what was just before an area of completely darkened space.
And yet a tiny blot of black beams back
And partially annuls the light and hurts the eye.
The black enlargens and fills up my whole being
And my thought.
A tiny circle up above is all that's left of lightened air
And now it slowly disappears.
The space around is deathly black, the darkness quite complete.
A tiny light shines out.

-BREADCRUMBS-

Littered along Coghart's Reserve like yesterday's redundant newspapers, lay the unctuous refuse of humanity. Or being sober, it sat chattering in groups of three or four, grasping its bottled breakfasts.

There had been a bus-stop at Coghart's Reserve, but because of the odious nature of its morning residents, bus officials had discreetly transferred the stop to a more pleasant location, some fifty yards further up the road. Morning commuters were then spared the disdainful experience of stopping at Coghart's Reserve (torpid vagrants are so depressing at so early an hour). And so Coghart's Reserve; its meagre grey benches with their blaspheming and coarse occupants; its ragged heaps of humanity, scattered behind sparse bushes, or blown against its weathered stone wall; and its penetrative stench, which caused the conscience to sneeze; all passed before the eyes of the commuter as a blur, or more accurately, as a smudge.

Coghart's Reserve was an island of Nature, in an urban sea. Its function was "to serve as an area of recreation beneficial to the physical and mental welfare of the community". But always there hung over Coghart's Reserve an obtrusive atmosphere of disenchantment. It was neither the sole domain of Nature, nor was it entirely swamped by the encircling sea of Humanity. Coghart's Reserve floated uneasily. A chagrined condition pervading its existence, as if Humanity and Nature, each vainly battling for control, had both forgotten the prize, and had discarded it to decay.

Coghart's Reserve, like a dog's droppings, was to be avoided. Paramount amongst local residents, this tenet experienced almost universal pursuit. But there was one, an unfortunate one, whose morning course led him past the dismal scene: an unavoidable puddle, best patiently traversed, and afterwards its splashes wiped from one's shoes.

He passed Coghart's Reserve each morning on his left; but it was below, to the concrete pavement, that he habitually averted his gaze, findings in it unique cracks, or fascinating ant-life, solace and protection. His analytic processes, however, would not permit total denial of the existence of Coghart's Reserve; instead they had dissected and neatly categorised it under "Unpleasant Realities", to his own satisfaction.

"Coghart's Reserve," the file would read, "is devoid of hope, devoid of that characteristic optimism which rescues other unpleasanties, notably war, from the abyss of despair. Coghart's Reserve is incapable of engendering either hope or faith."

The findings of the analysis were immutable; the daily supporting evidence only superficial; and the pavement was an agreeable alternative to Coghart's Reserve.

On one such morning, as he passed Coghart's Reserve, perusing the file in the texture of the pavement, or in the activities of its ants, nodding his assent with each step, his gaze struck an unfamiliar geography. Spread before his feet, as he stopped beneath the only tree that 'graced' Coghart's Reserve; spread in a peppered fashion, lay two square feet of white breadcrumbs.

The temptation to investigate was overwhelming. Breadcrumbs, white breadcrumbs, did not belong on the pavement in front of odious Coghart's Reserve. White breadcrumbs were an anomaly; white breadcrumbs did not belong. The pavement offered no solution, but indifferently supported the white particles making no attempt at explanation. But before his feet could motion him forward, with the enquiry closed, though unsatisfied, a disturbance in the foliage of Coghart's Reserve's only tree caught his attention.

A small bird had changed its perch, hopping from one branch to one adjacent. After this the bird remained motionless, surveying him, assessing this interloper's actions, and patiently awaiting its removal. The bird then turned its tiny head towards the interior of Coghart's Reserve, whistled once, and turned to face him again as he stood over the breadcrumbs.

He visually pursued the bird's whistle inland where his gaze fell upon a bald, tanned, unshaven creature, sitting cross-legged on a bench. Seeing the repulsive figure he instinctively thought of turning away, but remitted, for something the vagrant held attracted him. He studied the object which nestled between the man's crossed palms and his stomach; almost lost in a fold of his yellowed shirt; almost missed. Then he knew: the man cradled in his blackened hands a crust of white bread.

He turned his gaze again, back to the tree and the small bird, which still contemplated him; then down to the pavement his gaze fell, down to the delicate pattern of white breadcrumbs; and he smiled twice, once on his lips, made a mental erasure, closed a file, and walked on.

DEGENERATE YOUTH

Will our time come
– The youth of today,
Adults of tomorrow.
It seems impossible
That the 'oldies' were once like us.
– Or were they ?
Did they doubt and criticize ?
Our search is for something good – Better than what we've been given.
Wild music – we understand it.
Beethoven – like him too.
What was a hit in 1932 ?
Yesterday's top pop.
Jazz, nonsense songs, love songs,
Discotheques
The Golden Star Ballroom.
Degenerate Youth

And will we, with our children
Tut tut and shake our heads,
Mutter in disgust ?
Did grandpop feel the same ?

A craftsman working on a stone, recorded for our time and his Pharoah :
"This is a decadent generation ;
today's youth is rude and inconsiderate.
It has no respect for its elders."

DEATH OF ATLAS

dawn lit the city dirty concrete golden, breath of man's machines clouded the skyline geometrical jagged.
fell back upon his bed to watch the dawn squeeze in beneath the window blind groaning turning, taunted by the city he rose, plunging the knife in as he fell the city screamed and screamed, a church bell somewhere tolling made him think that he had but mechanical noise stopped him silent – the city lived . . .

looking from a window he saw the straight streets sprawled like corridors of cruelty that in the high heat of summer smouldered of violence and along these very veins of the city disease flowed the sun stimulating it into an idle traversing that only evening ended: but evening was the harshest for the cool wind wrought a web of sterile people a long embedded choking cancer, collecting on corners and in cafes that hummed and throbbed in a wonderfully barren world.

gathering and feeding they erupt in a dry rain that in a heaving torrent cascades crushingly to a dry sea by way of a woman or the torn flesh of a man.
and the dawn that starts to play upon the towering totems finds the animal silent and satisfied.

moved and fell into the neon night faces, foes potential, streamed swiftly past lovers leaning shoulder to shoulder drifting by bring back no memories of moments similar; spring and summer and winter and autumn all alone.
graffiti on a wall reached out and shook him saying "the city is dead"
he laughed and called himself blind
"to kill a ghost – oh, foolish romantic quest" he started to run for now he felt free crying "atlas released, atlas released"

the city coughed him up and the river bore him away but the world didn't stop just faltered as if being moved from shoulders to shoulders.

TONGUE

Suddenly the fire leapt from where it had started on the deck and licked towards the hold. Like a red demon, its destructive tongues of fire snatched at the lifeboats, which were the crew's only means of escape from the fading freighter, "Austral Star".

The vessel was carrying a load of two hundred tons of wood which was tinder-dry. Thick acrid smoke hung round the bridge and this made visibility negligible. The fiend roared up as it sadistically surveyed the crew's futile efforts to survive.

In a split second the fire ended its deadly game; a tongue of death filled the engine-room. Feeding on the fuel tanks, the fire ignited the ship from bow to stern. It exploded, hurling chunks of debris high into the heavens, only to fall again like fiery rain.

NEED'S ENDS

There she stands like a model in a shop window, alone
plastique fixed pose and from day to day she still manages to fill the air with something other than itself.

Subsisting on desires only wrought delusions can fulfil, she still has hopes—
wild dreams to us—
to make her life worthwhile
(or so it seems to her).
But when you blow away the powdered face, the alcoholic vapour shroud,
the dim memories of a hollow pretty head, now past, there's not much left
of what was, once.

What has gone itself has left its void in her,
spirited away with the years, and something else than lies restlessly nestled in the mind as our regret and her misfortune.
Dissect the eyes and you'll find no vision.
Dissect the heart and you'll find no tears.
And yet they lie
as much within the old maid's self as we remain around.

THE RIVER

Its upper reaches start in a boiling, bubbling, mass of foam, trickling down the mountain-side to join the stream which twists its way through grazing pastures, rice paddies, and wheat-fields, making its way towards the sea.

Through villages, towns and endless factories, man's waste turns this dancing stream into a crawling, sliding, mass of sickly brown water.

It reaches the sleeping city and starts its unnatural course through drains, pipes, and sewer outlets to the sound of shuffling feet above.

At mid-morning it gushes out into an open sea, to spread its waste far and wide. Meanwhile, man lies back in his "clean" home to look at what he has achieved — to pollute the unpolluted.

THE SWAGMAN

The tree on the hill stood alone and stately,
The gentle breeze blew softly,
While still the swagman walked.
He dragged his pack along,
His left foot had no shoe.
Dejected, alone and old.
No one cared; but in a way,
He belonged by the billabong.
The red dust blew up
And the swagman sauntered on.

EXTRACT FROM THE BEGINNING

..... slowly the dawn disperses the night sun
tears down again the black flag cyclic conflict over once more.

body motionless and naked lies prostrate on the ground covered with a shroud of dust, time tossed across it.
sun kneels down and gently kisses life into the body, causing innocent eyes to open and search make mind aware of surroundings and self and sun grows hotter.

'tis mid-day now
and the sun has fulfilled
the dawn initiated promises.
arms now commence to move and carve arcs into the womb of sand heels and knees leave valleys and hills and torso unsteady rising destroys the designs of genesis leaving an unpatterned network of creation.

standing in the afternoon is something new under the sun.

with evening the body has reached a thin long valley deep in which voices from the future echo curses and the body kneels down and burns into its mind the oft repeated words :
"adam, adam, adam."

"i am adam."

night brings a new sensation loneliness
for in the darkness he has become aware of the infinite immensity of all a round and tears upon the sand he weeps for he sees no purpose in his footprints stretching behind knows only curses for a deed not done
then hears

a movement from behind turning sees and with instinct mouthing the words says trembling "eve, eve" eve head bent in unfamiliarity looks up and before all else a good fruit offers and as he takes it from her hand feels no remorse despite the rain falling on their nakedness for the deed feels right
so right

THE THOUGHT OF YOU

The moon rides high
Upon the sky
Reflected in the sea.
Hand in hand
Along the sand
Together you and me.

I would like to find
What is on your mind
And if your love is true.
My mind drifts past
And finds at last
The thought of loving you.

LIFE SEES DEATH

Listening, only hearing the slight echo in his head, Straining the senses and then catching the Scraping of a leaf on the cement, it is dead.
A cold wind blows round his feet and
Its sterile whistling in the stark street
Makes him feel empty and uncomfortable.

Surrounded, his world is encompassed
By those brutes that torment, tease, and for most Offer security, but for the lonely, mean amassed
Time to spend and think; speculate, dictate,
Communicate with intangible spirits.
Vagueness is forth in his milky eyes
As he sits in anaesthesia, propped against the Brute that holds him in – alone.

Lying – half sitting, uncomfortable but it
Does not matter to him.
Unaware, dazed, sluggish and drugged,
Head dropped, shoulders drooped bearing the weight of his Arms limp at the sides of wasted life.
The waters rise – Alive ! The babbling stream and Crisp cold of water splashed on forgotten serenity,
Gone . . . Awakes sweaty, breathless,
A cool breeze again through the bars
Fanning his wet brow.

Once again he surges
WRONG ! WRONG ! O, GOD !
The life that verges on Peace, tranquility, and then
Is destroyed, smashed as Untold terror fills and overflows Blooded veins. With Insane lashing of predecessors long lost
But there
Shrill screams are heard upstairs, if you think.

Master Warder unlocks his brain and Lends a hand for those breezes and cool
Streams to wash the tension, loosen the taut
Strings, while he rests in an eternal swimming dream.

THE JUVENILE

The juvenile maintains that he is of fine stock and in his own terminology – a hep cat.

Lying between the ages of 13 – 16 the juvenile revels in his individuality and in his ability to be separate from the immature masses. He also prides himself on his capability to smoke cigarettes without coughing. He offers not even a wheeze to his friends who are waiting for someone to make the fatal mistake and relieve them of their expulsion fears.

The juvenile like other age groups loves neatness. He maintains his formidable appearance by parting his hair in the middle and letting it flow down his cheeks and into his mouth. The juvenile doesn't grow a moustache because either his chewing gum gets stuck in it or nature won't permit him to. But the juvenile excels in dress, starting from the beads that cling around his neck down to his mocassins which lie about the sole of the shoe like streamers on a maypole. A coloured teeshirt, faded and torn in the right places is only an entree which leads on to the next spectacle – the jeans. These are carefully washed, scrubbed and bleached to give the rugged effect which is needed to keep the standard which has been set down. And it goes needless to say no juvenile would wear a belt.

When juveniles congregate they immediately fall into classes starting from the "Arabian Devils" and declining in muscle pounds down to the inevitable "Surfies".

But through all the parental complaints and abuse this band of intrepid juveniles shall sustain their image, and move on to even greater glory in the eyes of man.

In the words of the immortal Winston Churchill "Never have so few annoyed so many for so long !"

FOURTEEN

The world is falling about my ears,
I cannot stop it.
It is destiny, so the historians say.
They cannot prevent it; me and my tears.

People are corrupt, they are Adam.
Were you not born ? Can you not speak ?
I cannot answer for I am not dead,
But death has already come and eternally been.

Cricket

If any of you have ever been to a cricket presentation night you will recall the rather aged gentleman who at some stage of the proceedings is given the opportunity to speak, to reminisce . . . He opens his address by exalting the Great Game; and the benediction is the same. The cynical young irrepressibles pray for the speeches to end. A common experience, made tolerable for the youngsters by hot sausage rolls and lovely trophies.

Cricket, more than any other sport, has its aged administrators, its votaries, who have played a lifetime of cricket and then have gladly given direction and leadership to the game and its players. It is a conservative game with continuity and fine traditions, unique among sports for the body of literature that has grown up around it. Centuries old, it is in no danger of death, even in this modern world where speed has such a fascination for the young. It is one of the happier features of British imperialism that where Englishmen governed they also carried their culture and their sports. Today, cricket is an international game played by people of all political, social and cultural complexions. In its own small way it has been a civilising influence between societies and within societies. Distinguished historian, Trevelyan, has written about eighteenth century England: "Squire, farmer, blacksmith, and labourer, with their women and children come to see the fun, were at ease together and happy all the summer afternoon. If the French noblesse had been capable of playing cricket with their peasants, their chateaux would never have been burnt." The latter may, or may not, be so, but the point that cricket was a positive moral force, is undoubtedly a true one.

"It isn't cricket". An ancient metaphor, but one whose origin was significant. The very name, for centuries, has connoted fair and honest endeavour, for cricketers, although strongly competitive, have been influenced by the unwritten ethics of the game: the spontaneous applause for an opponent's beautifully executed shot; the test player who has "walked" without waiting for the Umpire's signal; the skipper who recalls the victim of a bad decision; the fieldsman who, diving for a catch, signals a half volley; the junior Sydney High school-boys who accept without protest the umpiring decisions of a boy their own age. It is only the rare cricketer who does not approve of the standards implied in these actions. Occasionally there have been cricket captains at a national level who have gained the reputation of being "sharp". With this they have gained notoriety, even though in cricket, to be "sharp" is to take advantage of the rules, not to break them.

The fine spirit that the game engenders is revealed even on the level of national rivalry. One can recall riots in India and bodyline in Australia, but against these isolated instances must be balanced the lasting friendships and inter-racial tolerance that the game is helping in its own small way to foster. Although South Africa today pursues an intransigent apartheid policy, its cricketers recently have played under the captaincy of a West Indian. Cricket's literature testifies to the toleration and respect that is engendered among players of different race who have competed on a basis of equal skill and dignity.

For those who play or know, the game can be extraordinarily rich in satisfaction. Rugby offers sustained speed over a short period and the best games arouse intense excitement. But a club game of cricket strolls through the whole afternoon, and a Test match a week. Occasionally there are memorable and dramatic encounters drawing to a fine conclusion in the final day. Such a match was the Australian-West Indies Brisbane test of some years ago which resulted in a tie. For that final Wednesday afternoon in mid-December, the nation shared with the two teams a tension rarely equalled in international sport, built by the conflicts of the previous days. Sometimes matches appear to be reaching an early decision, but "glorious uncertainty", luck, fighting partnerships, splendid catches or inspired bowling revive the prospects of a team.

Part of the game's attraction lies in its social appeal, as well as to the sensibility of man. Cricketers never fail to be enlivened by the way players reveal their personality throughout an afternoon's cricket. Contrast and personality take priority over pace in players' minds. I have seen a number of Sydney High teams elated by achieving a "fighting" drawn result. One can recall the intense interest aroused as "Slasher" McKay stonewalled Australia to a draw in an Adelaide test. But perhaps the greatest appeal of cricket is to man's sensibility, to his instinct for the beautiful, the heroic, the comic. It is a commonplace for players sitting in the pavilion, admiring a partnership which burgeons forth, to applaud strokes for their beauty rather than the number of runs they score. Cricketers have always been at least as interested in the manner the game is played, morally or technically, as the result of the game itself. And each ground has the benefit of the advice of its gaffers who bask away the evening of their existence comparing the old with the new, always to the detriment of the new. There never was a batsman like Victor Trumper...

With its complex demand for building up sound techniques that take years to develop, it is a game frequently handed down from father to son with grandfather the senior educational adviser. Boys who accept this challenge and devote some years to their cricket education rarely toss it in. Most play it, when possible, well into middle age. Then they teach their sons, coach a team, become administrators, or assist as umpires. It is a game with character.

All things considered Sydney High School cricket has had a sound season. Fourteen teams now compete on Saturdays, an increasing number of staff is making sacrifices to see that weekend teams have coaching and management. I am certain that the efforts of Messrs Angles, Palaje, J. Callaghan, Wray, M. Whiting, F. Murphy, McLeod, Roberts have been appreciated as well as the parental help from Messrs Smith, Long, Banwell, and Simmons. The School is also grateful for the offers of coaching that have been received and will certainly take advantage of these in the coming spring. Within teams the spirit has been good and co-operation very evident. It has been a rarity for nearly all teams to experience chronic absenteeism. Particularly I would like to mention the 16yrs A team, whose performance and attitudes without a regular Saturday coach has been quite commendable. Most successful of the teams was the 14A, a team with talent and enthusiasm. Both open teams played some very good cricket, the seconds particularly in the 1969 season. Unfortunately in their last few games they were without the services of Mr. Alan Smith because of an unfortunate accident. Mr. Smith is still recovering. I am sure all cricketers with whom he has been associated wish him a speedy recovery.

The 1st XI could have won more matches. They were never disgraced, but their performances suffered from injury and some unfortunate lapses in form by recognized capable players. Ian Besomo was the most consistent player and deserved his selection for G.P.S. 1st XI honours. The team's proudest achievement, I think, was the manner of their recovery from the onslaught of the Barker College batsmen, and the very honourable draw which resulted. The McKay Oval 1st grade matches have been made more pleasant by the Ladies' Committee (led by Mrs. Dunn) whose lunches and afternoon teas, as well as fulfilling a need, have helped create a friendly social atmosphere. For their 1st XI matches the ground was invariably in excellent condition, and games were played on a pitch well prepared by our experienced and co-operative groundsman, Mr. Alf Brown.

With the increased number of teams it has been difficult to find available grounds and often teams have had no game. This unfortunate situation is being rectified and two all-weather wickets adjacent to McKay No. 1 are being laid. They should be available by the time this report is published.

Non-competitive matches were a feature of the 1969-70 season and appeared to be enjoyed on all occasions. Maitland Boys' High School travelled to Sydney and lost a very interesting match. Social honours were even, with the Grose family excelling themselves. Thank you once again, Mrs. Grose, and the parents who willingly billeted our Maitland visitors. Two matches were played against the Old Boys, both giving our batting added confidence. One Sunday match was played against a Randwick grade club combined team, and our boys were shown what a difficult proposition Stan Banwell can be when he bowls his off-spin on a wicket to his liking.

At the time of writing—mid-winter—some fifty of our lads are undergoing an eleven weeks course of cricket coaching at international cricketer Barry Knight's coaching centre. Nothing but good can come of this. In addition to Barry, many of our lads are receiving the excellent coaching of Tony Steele. They appreciate very much his energy, skill, and humour. Sydney High teams will reveal improved team performances in the coming season.

B. Hodge Cricket Master

First XI

Bill Lewis: On many occasions, Bill, captain of the team, played sound innings, but unfortunately these were mainly in the first half of the season and only glimpses of the form that won him a G.P.S. 1st XI Cap were seen. Bill is a batsman who pleases with his strokeplay and a generally sound technique, but his period of loss of confidence has been prolonged by instances of playing his strokes at the wrong time. Bill is an excellent slips field, a sound stock medium pacer. In all respects he has been a very good influence for cricket and an excellent ambassador for Sydney High.

David Clark: Vice-captain, until his unfortunate finger injury. On many occasions David has revealed both accuracy and guile as a leg-spin bowler when he has broken the back of the opposition's batting. On a few occasions he has also been caned severely, but this is a necessary if somewhat painful experience in the education of every slow bowler. As he matures David will bowl his stock ball at a slightly faster pace and will gain increased nip from the pitch. He has every prospect for a bright future. He must, however, become a better fielder off his own bowling.

Brian Russell: Once again Brian has proved his worth both as a batsman and fielder. It is a pity Brian's cricket education was not a more formal one when of tender years, for his temperament and general talent are excellent. On two memorable occasions he annihilated the bowling and paved the way for sound team scores.

Ian Besomo: Ian's excellent concentration was the main feature of his reliable batting which has won him a place in the G.P.S. First XI. Ian's driving is his main run-getting asset. He must learn to use his reach to punch off the back foot more confidently. Back psychosis has converted Ian into an off-spinner of promise, his main assets being a quickish delivery and real pace and turn off the pitch.

Geoffrey Dunn: Geoff has a temperament that makes him an ideal team player. Often he was called upon to curb his strokeplay so as to help develop more solidity in the batting. He did this with hardly a failure and added greatly to the morale and spirit of the side. Geoff's greater talent is his wicket-keeping. Undoubtedly with experience he will become a very good 'keeper by any standard.

Tony Grose: Tony, at his best, was a steady batsman, with strong off-side play and good concentration. For reasons that were not altogether his own we often saw modest performances in the latter half of the season. Tony was able to fill an opening bowling vacancy with accuracy.

Jack Clark: "Fortune favours the brave"—usually, but not always. Jack delighted us all on a number of occasions during the '69-70 season with scorching drives and lusty sixers. That's your game, Jack. Keep playing it. But a little more discretion, early. Fortune never favours the foolish.

Stephen Halliday: Steve has developed into a more than useful batsman, driving and pulling with a confidence derived from correct technique. Steve is on the threshold of big innings, as there has been a marked improvement in concentration. One big innings and many more will follow.

Neil Odze: A reliable off-spinner who was sufficiently accurate to bowl for long periods and withstand attempted onslaughts. On a wicket to his liking Neil was dangerous. At no stage in any game did Neil ever give up. An excellent team player.

Peter Carlisle: The youngest player in the team. The most valuable part of the elevation atmosphere of all-day Saturday cricket, matches that have a tension not experienced with other grades. Peter has real promise as a batsman, but must learn to drive rather than turn, the medium pacer on his stump. He is particularly prone to this very early in an innings.

David Della Marta: Brought into the team late in the season, David has turned in some creditable performances as a medium pace bowler, his greatest talent being his ability to cut a ball. With this ability he will gain increased success by concentrating more on the direction of the stumps. David will get his chance higher in the batting order this season. In junior grades he has indicated ability in the field. Indifferent fielding must be improved.

John Robinson: John was the team's outstanding fieldsman, bringing off on many occasions superb catches close to the wicket. Replacing him will be a problem. A lower order batsman, John scored well occasionally, but he was insecure outside the off-stump.

B. Hodge

Again, as happened last season, the team failed to live up to expectations. This is perhaps best indicated by only one player, Ian Besomo, being selected in a G.P.S. team. Ian was deservedly selected for the G.P.S. 1st XI, being our only player to show consistent form throughout the season.

The general trend of the season was set in the first match against St. Joseph's at Hunter's Hill. The High opening attack of W. Lewis and A. Brown started steadily but didn't seem to trouble the Joey's batsmen. However, when N. Odze (6-41) had the opposition 5-69 with some accurate bowling, High looked to have a good chance of a win. A 53 fifth-wicket partnership rallied the Joey's ranks however and they managed a respectable 146 which, at the time, appeared to be well within High's capabilities. But it was not to be. Both the opening batsmen, Lewis and Robinson, were dismissed early, which gave Joey's the upper-hand. The middle-order doggedly fought back against a varied pace attack, with I. Besomo (23), S. Halliday (21) and G. Dunn (25) saving face for High on an easy wicket to help the score to a mediocre 114.

The next game against Grammar down at the Barn turned out to be the poorest effort by High during the season, although it was closely followed by the Scots match. After being sent in on a spongy wicket an early wicket fell and through an element of bad luck as well as bad batting High's middle-order collapsed, the tail failed to wag, and the innings was abruptly finished at 68. B. Russell and I. Besomo were the only batsmen who offered any resistance, scoring 22 and 15 respectively. The Grammar batsmen slammed the High attack to declare at 2-153. At stumps High were 7-119 with W. Lewis (33) and J. Clarke (28) showing a return to form.

Then came the Scots match at McKay, which was almost a repeat of the Grammar rout. Again, when High batted, the openers failed and it was up to the middle-order to keep the innings alive. Again I. Besomo and J. Clarke succeeded in scoring 16 and 21 respectively, but the rest of the team collapsed. High could only manage 70 on a fairly dead wicket. The Scots batsmen took to the High attack and closed their innings at 3-85, the only successful bowler being N. Odze taking 2-16. High looked better in the second innings again with Ian Besomo showing his true form by hitting a brilliant 46, including 2 huge sixes. One of these would be the biggest ever hit at McKay, landing on the horsetrack on the full. Brian Russell (21) also assisted with some power-hitting to bring the score to 7-100 at stumps.

Against Kings at McKay High were a greatly improved side owing to a change in the batting order, but unfortunately not even this was good enough to defeat Kings. T.K.S. batted first after being sent in and looked set to amass a huge score when 2-116. Luck finally came High's way and Kings collapsed to 8-125, four of the wickets falling on 116. They were finally out for 145 through some very fine bowling from I. Besomo (3-41) and D. Dellamarta (3-8). It was in this game that High lost the invaluable services of David Clarke for the season when he attempted a difficult catch off his own bowling and only succeeded in breaking a finger. At the time he had 2-48 to his credit. Again High's hopes were high but suffered a dent when Brian Russell was bowled second ball in the one over before lunch. D. Dellamarta, promoted to opener for the day, succeeded in staving off the King's attack for half an hour only to return to the pavilion without a run against his name. Then the fire was rekindled when G. Dunn (34) and I. Besomo

(32) put their heads down for a solid 52 third-wicket partnership, and were aided by S. Halliday (27) and A. Grose (18). Unfortunately the rest of the batting failed to follow this up and collapsed for a total of 127, 18 short of the Kings total. T.K.S. batted again until stumps when they were 2-87.

After a good solid start against Newington the batting again collapsed on a popping McKay wicket. B. Russell (33) and I. Besomo (31) put on a 54 opening partnership while G. Dunn added 28 at first drop. Other than W. Lewis (16) and S. Halliday (16) the rest didn't resist and the team were again out for a mediocre score (135). The Newington batsmen batted soundly and compiled 5-140 against a High attack lacking in penetration. D. Dellamarta took 2-33. High were sent in for the second innings and again improved in the second dig to end up with 8-104.

Then came the occasion of High's one and only G.P.S. win against St. Ignatius at River-view. Igy's were sent in to bat on a well-grassed wicket. They began unsteadily. Accurate bowling combined with tight fielding kept the runs at bay. Wickets fell steadily and Igy's were 5-37. They were following High's previous examples and finished with 125. Dave Dellamarta again showed his potential taking 4-32 while I. Besomo bowled his biting off-breaks accurately to take 3-38. Then came the highlight of the season when Brian Russell, opening the innings, scored a brilliant 85, including 8 fours and 2 sixes. This also included a 54 opening partnership with I. Besomo (7). Brian was assisted by J. Robinson (28), J. Clarke (15) and S. Halliday (10) to amass High's biggest total of the season—9-174, and to record our only win.

High had a great deal more luck as well as a great deal less competition in the C.H.S. competition, going through undefeated as C.H.S. Zone Premiers after a very close victory in the deciding game against Randwick High.

At the beginning of the season the 1st XI almost looked unbeatable on paper as far as the batting order went (the bowling left something to be desired), and was as good as if not better than last year's 1st XI in that department. The disappointing results were mainly due to lack of application in the batting.

This is no reflection upon the coaching of Mr. B. Hodge throughout the season. Many thanks must go to Mr. Hodge for the time and effort put in to the side during the week and on Saturdays. The team was in high spirits throughout the season despite the failures, and the cricket was greatly enjoyed by all concerned.

A vote of thanks must go to the mothers who put themselves out to come to the games and provide lunch and afternoon tea for the teams. It was greatly appreciated.

Congratulations go to Ian Besomo on his selection in the G.P.S. 1st XI—good luck in the representative games Ian.

W.L.

2nd XI

This year's 2nd XI was a keen but inexperienced team. The side met with great success in the C.H.S. competition but failed to win a game in the G.P.S. matches.

Often the bowlers put the side in a good position only to be let down by poor team fielding. Against Kings an early break had Kings two down for only one run, but missed chances in the field let them back into the game, which they went on to win.

The best batting performances were by Colin Dunn, with a sixty-one against St. Joseph's and a forty-one against Riverview. Peter Carlisle did well to score sixty-one against Grammar.

The best bowling performances were by Bob Marshall, who consistently bowled well. He finished with a total of twenty-five wickets in the G.P.S. competition.

There were many players in the side who showed considerable improvement over the season. Perhaps John Bolton was the most impressive in this respect, and he should certainly be a good player next season.

After having played as a team this year we can expect much better performances from the side in the next season of G.P.S. matches.

The team wishes to thank the coaches, Messrs. McLeod and Smith for their advice and time throughout the season.

Basketball

Senior basketball had very limited success this year, owing mainly to the lack of numbers interested in playing the game. Sydney High was unable to field any 16 year teams and on many occasions was hard pressed to field any open sides. Steve Lang was the new first grade captain this year and together with G. Maloney were our keenest players.

The future of basketball in the school, however, looks brighter. Eighty first form boys tried out for the 12 years and 13 years teams this year. Boys selected in the 12 years team had no competition to play in, but have trained hard all season and will be pressing for selection in the 13 years team in third term. Warrick Berrett and John Gardina deserve special mention in this regard.

The 13 years basketball side had tremendous success this year, winning 10 games and losing 3 games. Nicky Roth (capt.) was the top point scorer with 53 points. The most improved player in the team was Gary Grimm, while Bill Warren, a mere 5' 8" first form boy could have a good future as a basketballer.

The 14 years basketball side, winners of the 1969 13 years G.P.S. and C.H.S. competitions have continued their success this year, losing only one game. This team, despite their success, will need to train hard if they are to continue winning. The team relies heavily on Tony McDonald, their captain, and Nick Adamopoulos, who has tallied 162 points in the first half of the competition.

The 15 years team had had mixed success, winning most of their G.P.S. games, and losing most of the C.H.S. games. Tim Mills, the most improved player of this team is our brightest prospect for the coming season. Derek Frere, who sustained a broken ankle during the season still managed to be top scorer of the G.P.S. competition while Tim Mills was the top scorer of the C.H.S. competition.

Special mention must be made of Robert Hauer and Peter Warriner who have spent much time coaching the 12 years team.

R. Grovers

First Grade Basketball: This year's first grade, although not as successful as teams in previous years, was not disgraced in its efforts. The team, unlike previous sides, lacked size and experience. Three boys, G. Castles, R. Williamson, and S. Lang were selected without playing in previous years. Although the results were not always in our favour the team enjoyed their games and it was pleasing to see that there was a willingness to train on the part of most players.

This year was the first time in which an official G.P.S. competition was held, and with Associated schools competing proved to be very successful, although still in an experimental stage.

In the Shell Cup the team was defeated in the second round by Sydney Technical High School. Although the team had no C.H.S. representatives, G. Maloney and S. Lang were selected in combined G.P.S. team to play the against members of the visiting Harlem Globetrotters. G. Maloney had the hardest job in the match, standing 5' 6" he had to mark a Globetrotter, 6' 10"

The team would like to thank sincerely Mr. Govers for his enthusiasm in coaching them; no doubt he will lead future teams to victory.

S.L.

Second Grade Basketball : The team had a disappointing year. The team could win only one C.H.S. game (against Maroubra Bay), and two in the G.P.S. competition (against St. Joseph's and Shore). The main problem was undoubtedly the inability of the various members of the team to mould their play to suit the team as a whole. Undoubtedly a more concerted effort with regards to training is needed if the team expects to achieve the necessary functioning.

The team extends its thanks to Mr. Govers for his time and effort with regard to coaching and only regrets that his efforts could not have been suitably rewarded during the season.

Water Polo

1970 has been Sydney High's best year ever in waterpolo. The school has established itself as the best exponent of the sport in N.S.W. schoolboys' waterpolo. Many will not be over-impressed by this achievement as they feel that waterpolo is not a widely and keenly contested sport. However, such is not the case. In the Phillip zone, to which High belongs, there are seven schools, and in Sydney there are twelve zones, all of which High "conquered". To be at the top of some sixty schools in any sport is indeed an achievement. High has done just this.

Training has been the key to High's success. Mr. Fraser has persevered for many years to mould a team of State standard and at last has been rewarded. The majority of the boys in 1st and 2nd grades have joined out-of-school clubs in order to improve their play, and this indicates the general spirit of dedication among the players. Most of these clubs train at least three times a week.

For years High has tried to win the N.S.W. Schoolboys' Waterpolo Knockout which is regarded as the standard for the top team. High, after being runners-up in 1968 and third in 1969 were never headed to win the elusive shield in 1970. The 1st grade team went through undefeated to the grand final and ran out the winners 7-2, completely overshadowing the opposition, Blakehurst High, in all phases of play. The senior teams were not the only champions; a junior team competed in the Knockout and finished, to their credit, in the first four. An under-15 team, captained by Mark Gilsenan, also entered the State Junior Knockout, and finished runners-up.

Many outstanding individual performances were achieved this year. Lindsay Cotterill, Glenn Gilsenan and Wayne Turnbull made the NSW CHS 1st grade waterpolo team. For Glenn and Lindsay it was their third year in the team, and Wayne's second. Turnbull captained the NSW team this year. The talent in the team by no means stopped with these three players. Every player in the 1sts made the Phillip zone team which toured Duntroon. Paul Connell and Ernie Kritzler were captain and vice-captain respectively.

Sydney High in 1970, as can be seen, had a great year in waterpolo, and if the junior performances this year are any indication it won't be the last. Although High will be losing most of the 1st graders next year their replacements are more than equipped to fill their places.

The 1st and 2nd graders would like to thank Mr. "Jock" Fraser for his devotion to the teams and for his coaching. It gave the boys much personal satisfaction to be able to do so well under his guidance.

L.C.

15 Years Team : The year commenced with a weakness in the backs especially in the goal, but the problem was soon solved with the inclusion of Douglas Pauling. Towards the end of the season the forwards developed into a very good scoring combination, notching up some very noticeable wins. The backs improved rapidly and towards the end of the season were almost impregnable, as was proved when the team won the competition and were second in the State knockout.

Our great success could not have been possible without the assistance and encouragement of Mr. Fraser.

E.Z.

14 Years Team : This year's 14 years team did not meet with the outstanding successes of the higher teams. However, considerable improvement was noticeable towards the end of the season. The school can be assured that the promise of better performances in the future was revealed by the obvious potential in the team. The team's thanks go to Mr. Fraser for his help throughout the season.

Tennis

Over the years Tennis as a school sport has attracted a limited but enthusiastic group of players, who have met with varying degrees of success on the courts. The re-surfacing of the School tennis courts in the long term will undoubtedly see an improvement in the standard of tennis played by the members of the School teams. This year has been most successful, with both the first and second grade teams making their way into the semi-finals. It was here that the School revealed its lack of that "championship" ability which is so essential in efforts to win a tennis series. Despite the defeats in the semi-finals the School can look back on the 1970 tennis season with some pride, especially in the knowledge that the ground work has been laid for further success in the coming seasons.

Thanks go to Mr. D. Shortle and to Mr. P. Wilkinson, whose interest in both the sport and the players was appreciated by all concerned.

J.S.M.

First Grade Tennis: First grade performed well throughout the season, and were unlucky to be beaten in the semi-finals. The end of the first round saw High in second place, close behind Matraville. However, as the second round commenced, players failed to attend matches and sickness set the team back. The team was narrowly beaten by South Sydney, Cleveland St. and Matraville, all due to poor attendance or sickness. By the time of the semi-finals, with two key players victims of the 'flu, the First Grade team was well beaten and finished fourth in the competition. At stages the team showed that it had the potential to win many more matches, but this was never realized. All players performed well but found that the new points system was not always beneficial to their play.

P.H.

Second Grade Tennis: Second Grade was very unlucky not to win the competition this year. At the end of the first round we were undefeated, a trend which we continued well into the second round. Under the new scoring system we had little trouble with the Cleveland St., Matraville, and Vacluse High teams. We defeated South Sydney fairly easily but our greatest challenge came from Randwick High. Yet, even here we won without too much effort. Towards the end of the second round we met with some unlucky breaks. Due to exams, school activities etc., we found that our key players were tied down. After forfeiting to Randwick in the last match of the second round and hence losing our position at the top of the competition table, Ross Hand volunteered to fill in for us. Despite a valiant effort on the part of the team we lost to Randwick—our only real loss—in the semis and forfeited the following week to South Sydney in the second round of the semis (lack of players). Had it not been for this annoying problem at the end of the competition, there can be little doubt that the team would have performed consistently at the standard indicated earlier in the season.

Annual Swimming Carnival

The Sydney High School Swimming Championships were held at Booralie Olympic Pool on the 17th of February, 1970. The Carnival was an outstanding success, with many fine individual performances. The highlights of the Championships were undoubtedly the domination of the 16 years events by the Bell twins from 5th form (between them they won every event in this division), and the consistent performances by Lloyd Biram, Geoff Crawford, and James Gustard in their respective divisions. The success of the Carnival as a whole was undoubtedly due to the superb organization of Messrs. Cameron and Wiseman, and to the members of Staff assisting.

Winter Sport

Rugby

This year the School has continued to field teams in both the C.H.S. and G.P.S. competitions, and while this has its obvious disadvantages, it is in itself a fair comment on the enthusiasm with which most Rugby players approach their sport. It has been noticeable that enthusiasm on the field has been matched by greater support from the sidelines, and this is of some consequence for School spirit generally.

In the open teams the School has not been particularly successful, especially in the G.P.S. competition. There are numerous factors involved here, not the least of which is the high regard in which Rugby is held at the other G.P.S. schools. The 1st XV was unfortunate this season in that it lost many of its matches by only the odd point, and its performances in some of the matches toward the end of the season indicated that the team did have the potential indicated at the commencement of the season.

Congratulations must go to Brian Russell, selected for the G.P.S. 1st's. Brian led the side well throughout the season with consistent, and at times brilliant, displays. His performance in the G.P.S. game was indicative of his ability as a player.

Other boys to win selection in G.P.S. teams were Stan Theodore (2nd's), and Steven Layman (reserve, 2nd's). Stan Theodore thoroughly deserved his selection as half-back for the 2nd's, as his penetrating runs from the scrum base for the 1st XV had resulted in many good moves.

While the open teams failed to win competitions, this was not the case with many of the junior teams. The outstanding junior team was undoubtedly the 13B team, undefeated in both the G.P.S. and C.H.S. competitions. Capably led by K. Dunn and coached by Mr. Trussell, this team of youngsters played outstanding football over the entire season. Other teams to do particularly well were the 14A's (co-premiers, C.H.S. competition), 14B's (undefeated premiers, C.H.S. competition), 15B's (co-premiers, C.H.S. competition), and the 13A's (undefeated premiers, C.H.S. competition). All these teams have achieved their successes through consistency—in play, in match attendance, in training attendance. They have set an example for all teams to follow.

The School has a great tradition as a Rugby-playing school, and the 1970 season has witnessed nothing to call into question this tradition. The football played has been hard but fair, with the desire to win rarely getting the better of the desire to play as a true sportsman. Good sportsmen enjoy their sport, and if all the players can say at the end of the 1970 season that they have enjoyed the games played then the Sport has been worthwhile.

To all the coaches who assisted during the season goes a sincere "thanks". It is pleasing to note that more "outside" coaches are taking over our teams, but we could still do with many more. The efforts of the Ladies' Auxiliary with regards to the provision of afternoon teas at McKay Oval matches has been appreciated by all associated with the sport.

J.M.

First Grade Rugby

The 1st XV for 1970 won neither the G.P.S. nor C.H.S. competitions. It was not cheated of any deserved victory, for in all honesty such victories were not deserved. As a first-grade side this year's team was probably above average, but it still did not contain the necessary material for a win in high-class competitions. There was a degree of dedication amongst the players, but even so was probably insufficient for a team aspiring to victory.

There is obviously a certain amount of pressure involved in playing 1st Grade. As top representatives of the School, much is expected from the players and the aspect of "winning" is perhaps emphasized to the detriment of enjoying the sport. Coaches are not exempt from this pressure either, for the responsibilities of managing and training a 1st Grade side are formidable. Further, when a new coach is appointed mid-way through the season, as happened with Mr. Callaghan, the responsibilities and pressures become even greater. Mr. Callaghan approached the training and coaching of the side with an enthusiasm greatly appreciated by all team members. The same can only be said of Mr. Cameron—it was a blow to the team that he had to leave High during the season. Together they succeeded in producing a team which, though failing to attain its highest aspirations, rewarded their efforts with vigorous and whole-hearted displays.

Brian Russell as full-back and captain of the team, used his experience and tremendous ability to rescue his side from many difficult situations. Brian was rightly rewarded when he gained selection in the G.P.S. 1st Grade team, in which he also excelled. Stan Theodore (half-back), who was selected in G.P.S. 2nd Grade, was another outstanding player.

The team's match record is not impressive. In the C.H.S. competition this zone was extremely strong with such teams as Randwick, Matraville and Maroubra Bay providing strong opposition. In the G.P.S. competition we could manage only two wins, against St. Ignatius and Newington. In the G.P.S. competition some excuses may be offered for the numerous losses sustained. The matches against Shore, Kings and Grammar were lost by a margin of only one or two points, and in the Shore game the narrow defeat by the eventual Premiers indicates the potential that the side had, but only occasionally revealed.

Nevertheless, in spite of these losses, the team was able to satisfy its supporters to the end that none of its defeats could be termed "overwhelming". The season was enjoyed by all members, and to achieve this in a side constantly under pressure and obligation, is significant.

Inevitably comes the "thank you" to the parents who provided the afternoon teas. Their importance is often neglected, but their efforts are deeply appreciated by each member of the 1st Grade team. To all our supporters—"thank you".

I.B.

Second Grade Rugby

This year's Second Grade team, runners-up in the C.H.S. competition but last in the G.P.S., generally speaking were fairly successful. The team could, and in fact should have, finished higher in the G.P.S., but changes to the initial team, injuries, and an incredible amount of bad luck, coupled with a tendency to give away penalties at vital moments, led to their lowly position on this competition. Overall the team finished up using over twenty players and to those who filled in goes a sincere "thanks".

Speaking personally about the players is quite difficult as a good few of the players were "up and down" from 1st to 2nd Grade over the season. Paul Berghouse played at firstly centre, then on the wing and finally at full-back, his correct position, and in each of these positions proved to be somewhat of a mystery player—he kicked superb goals on Wednesdays but was an abject failure on most Saturdays. In spite of this he played well all season and won the Interact Club's "Best and Fairest" Award for 2nd Grade this year. "Nipper" Paling, the team's astute and faithful half-back, was also the team's captain, and his consistent and inspiring play was instrumental in many of the team's performances. Steve Halliday was in the same mould—safe and consistent. The centres, Paul Connell and Mick Gibson, were sound rather than brilliant in their displays. Their tackling was first class. Jim Demetriou and Jack Gilsenan made up the backline and were always dependable for a good showing. In the forwards all players had a good grasp of the nature of forward play, and it is a comment on all the forwards to say that they played as a pack. The back-row consisted of Blomberg, Williamson and Santifort, and these players were responsible for saving many tries. Their general foraging for the loose ball led to the commencement of many enterprising movements. It was particularly unfortunate that "Razz" Williamson was out injured for so long; however, he and Peter Burgess showed their versatility by playing in the second-row during the latter stages of the season. The second-row positions were filled by Peter Willcox, Steve Vidal, Daryll Bathis and Norm O'Neill, who were all eighty-minute triers. Daryll Bathis showed his versatility by playing second-row, wing, centre and front row—not a bad effort. The front row was especially strong. It consisted of Ross Day, the team's vice-captain, "Pig" Franklin, who gained a lot of ball from rucks and was most important in the tight, and the hooker, "Ed" Lumsden, who supplied the team with more than an even share of the ball and who played well in the open. The lineout jumpers were Day and Willcox, and the team won a fair share of the ball through them.

Overall it could be said that the team did have the ability to go a long way but unfortunately things did not eventuate in the direction desired. The coaching of Mr. Blacklock, always vigorous and inspiring, was appreciated by all members of the team. The team wishes to convey its sincere appreciation to him for his great effort, and also to Messrs. Callaghan, Blomberg and Day for their help and advice throughout the season. Also a "thank you" to the Ladies' Auxiliary for preparing the supper after the games and to the team's supporters.

Congratulations to Grammar on winning the competition: they built their game around a strong forward pack, a style of play High needs to be more aware of in future.

Rowing

Sydney High Rowing Club was capably led in 1969-70 by Geoff Franklin (Captain of Boats) and Mark Godfrey (Vice-Captain).

The atmosphere around the shed was friendly and enthusiastic. Crews participated in club and school regattas in the metropolitan area; the First VIII travelled to Grafton over Easter, to win the CHS Championship; and two VIII's and four IV's went to Penrith for the G.P.S. Head of the River on April 11th.

Focal point of the 1969-70 season was the rowing camp at Abbotsford. Beginning on February 9th, all crews except the 1st VIII (which came in on March 23rd) slept and ate at the boatshed from Monday to Thursday nights, travelling by bus to school, and training in the mornings and afternoons. Mr. Mike Gilbert – Camp Manager, fiery orator, furious organizer, morale-booster, caterer, breakfast cook – slept in at the shed and to his tact and enthusiasm are due the success of the camp.

With the exception of the 1st VIII, Penrith crews had only moderate success during the season. A significant factor, as in past years, was the lack of weight in crews. The Rowing Committee is making long-term plans to overcome this. As this report was being written a winter weight training schedule was beginning.

Special efforts will be made over the next season to attract more junior boys into rowing. Mr. Norm Grounds, the School's head coach, is running a number of winter training schools to introduce juniors to the sport. Over the winter, all equipment will be standardized to cater for smaller boys, as well as seniors. During the 1970-71 season more tub regattas than in the past will provide competition.

A serious problem is shortage of boats. The school has only four "tub IV's". One of these has just about seen its last race. During 1969-70 there were ten tub fours to share these four boats, and next season will certainly bring an increase in numbers. The Rowing Committee is making strenuous efforts to raise funds to purchase more boats. A "Rowathon" will be held on Sunday, 20th September.

The club is run almost wholly from outside the school, and the list of men who have devoted hours and whole days to the sport is very long. Penrith coaches were Mr. Norm Grounds (1st VIII), Mr. Neil Smith (2nd VIII), Mr. Al Simons (1st and 2nd IV's), Mr. Geoff Knight (3rd IV), and Mr. Ken Goswell (4th IV). Messrs Ross Woodham and Ron Madden coached top junior crews. Messrs Tony Blomberg, Ken Baret, Don Parr, Ken Breakspear, Les Franklin and Bill Bowey were among those who worked hard on the Rowing Committee. Mr. Peter Wilkinson struggled valiantly with accounts.

Special thanks are due, also, to Sydney Rowing Club which makes its own facilities available to the school and provided us with a trailer for transporting boats to and from Penrith. Six departing members of the First VIII have joined Sydney Rowing Club for the 1970-71 season.

For most boys who were able to participate the season was enjoyable and rewarding. Rowing is one of the most demanding sports available to schoolboys—requiring not only stamina and physical effort, but self-control and teamwork of a very high order. A measure of the club's success was that these qualities were evident in all crews.

P. Cady
Rowing Master

First VIII

This year's crew, through hard work and skilful coaching, developed into the most successful High eight for a decade. Indicative of this was the winning of the CHS State Championship for the second year running, the gallant, closely fought fourth place in the G.P.S. Head-of-the-River and the second placing in the Australian Schoolboys' title.

The crew had an everage weight of 12 stone 5 lbs, but was still one of the lightest on the river. It consisted of four members of the 1969 eight, G. Franklin, P. Wall, P. Logan, and J. Ehrlich. Added to these were I. Chrichton, C. King and P. Harvey from the previous Second VIII and I. Luxford from the Second IV. The cox, Rory O'Connor, was from last year's First IV. These rowers developed into an experienced and race-hardened combination under the watchful eye of Mr. Norm Grounds and the many supporters the crew had during the season.

The season was a long and arduous one, starting in early August 1969, and continuing non-stop through to April 1970, a total of nine months of solid training and preparation for the Head-of-the-River title. A great team spirit was developed between the crew members, the coach, and all others who had close connections with the crew.

During the season the eight covered over 1,100 miles in training, including fifteen mile-and-a-half courses, and competed in twelve regattas for a total of 17 races, with 5 wins, 6 seconds, and 2 thirds resulting as a racing record. An indication of how hard the crew trained was the fact that they trained every lunchtime, and three days after school, as well as rowing six days a week. The three days before the Head-of-the-River at Penrith saw the eight rowing some of the best and most powerful rowing of the season. Because of a "no comment" policy adopted by the coach the eight was by-passed in the ratings as favourites, but the crew was confident they could do well against the heavyweight favourites, Kings and Shore. A specially planned diet during the season and a "dehydration" period in the last week before the Head-of-the-River saw that every member was in top physical condition.

The actual race itself turned out to be a thriller and the closest for many years. Rowing to a pre-determined plan, the eight flew off the start and were third at the half-way mark. The strain of the race caught up with the crew and the fast-finishing St. Joseph's combination were just able to nudge High out of a place by dead-heating with Shore for second place behind Kings, who won their fourth successive title.

Because of their gallant effort the eight brought a great amount of credit to the school. We hope that next year's eight will, because of our efforts, be able to do as well or even better. The crew would sincerely like to thank our coach, Mr. Norm Grounds, for the time, patience, and energy that he devoted to us throughout the season. We would also like to thank Mr. Cady, the new Rowing Master, without whose organization and enthusiasm little of our success could have occurred.

Second VIII

This year's Second VIII looked, at the beginning of the season, potentially good enough to make a race of the 1970 L.C. Robinson Memorial Trophy, but this was not to be. The crew was finalized mid-way through the Christmas vacation and contained quite a number of experienced rowers. There were seven rowers from the 1969 Penrith fours, while one member was from the junior crews and one was new to rowing. The major weakness in the Second VIII was, as it has been in the past, lack of weight. Coach, Mr. Neil Smith, attempted to make up for this deficiency by teaching the crew to row stylishly and effectively. Although the results in the lead-up regattas did little to hearten the crew, both coach and crew were confident that this effective style would enable us to row above our weight at Penrith. During the race the crew was never able to settle down and the result was a disappointment to all.

The crew would like to extend its thanks to Mr. Neil Smith for his expert coaching and encouragement throughout the season. The crew was only disappointed that it could not suitably reward his efforts.

First IV

The First IV was initially selected with P. Brownlee rowing bow. However, half way through the season, due to illness, Chris Quick took over the bow position. Our coach, Al Simons, left for an overseas trip for a good part of the season and the Third IV coach, Geoff Knight, gave us good advice during his absence.

The crew, though the lightest First IV on the river, showed good potential throughout the season. A second in the Haberfield Regatta seemed to indicate the heights to which the crew could justifiably aspire. At Penrith the crew rowed very well to come fourth, two lengths behind the winner.

Our thanks must go to Messrs. Al Simons and Geoff Knight for their coaching, and to Messrs. Cady and Gilbert for providing an enjoyable and well run camp.

Second IV

The crew was finalized in the first week of first term. Our coach was overseas for over a month and the crew was taken over by Mr. G. Knight and Mr. K. Goswell. In spite of their good efforts under difficult circumstances the performances in the early Regattas were disappointing. The week before the Newington Regatta our coach, Mr. Simons returned from his trip and there was, as a result of his efforts, a marked improvement in our rowing. In the Newington Regatta we rowed to fourth place in our heat, being edged out of the final by only one foot.

We produced some pleasing rows as the season developed but unfortunately could only manage seventh place at Penrith.

The crew would sincerely like to thank Mr. Al Simons for making the season an enjoyable one, and we were only disappointed that we could not have done better for him.

Third IV

The crew selected at the beginning of the Christmas vacation was—Brad. Jelfs (bow), Ian Powell (2), Greg. Ricketson (3), Neil McGill (stroke) and Jim Rains (cox).

The racing season started well with a third at Colleagues Regatta and a second at Balmain Regatta in the Lightweight Novice Fours. We were forced to scratch at North Shore Regatta because of sickness and injury. However, at Newington we met other 3rd Fours for the first time and gained fifth place in the final after coming second in our heat.

Only two weeks before Penrith Greg. Ricketson was forced out by illness and Gordon Fagg took his place. A week later Ian Powell injured his wrist and a second replacement was necessary—Steve Lang then rowed (2). We would like to thank Gordon and Steve for coming back to rowing at such short notice and for their whole-hearted effort. Despite the hard work and optimism, the lack of time in training together resulted in a sixth placing at Penrith.

We all thank Mr. G. Knight for his excellent coaching and hope that he enjoyed the season with us as much as we enjoyed being coached by him.

Fourth IV

This year's Fourth IV was again a very light crew, and this resulted in a lot of hard training and conditioning in order to achieve some sort of parity with the other crews. The crew rowed in numerous Regattas, but our only success came in the Riverview Gold Cup where, finishing third in our heat, only just missed out of the final. Training was frequently interrupted throughout the season by sickness. This factor, combined with the lack of weight, resulted in a disappointing 8th place at Penrith.

We would like to thank our coach, Mr. Ken Goswell, for making our season an enjoyable one, and for devoting his time to coach us throughout the season.

SOCCKER

It has been noticeable during the season that more boys, especially those in the junior forms, are showing an interest in Soccer as a School sport. In the long run this will be to the better for the Sport, but in the short term more senior boys are needed in the two open teams.

This year the standard of Soccer played by High teams has shown a noticeable improvement over last season. The fact that the 1st Grade team could force a draw with Randwick, the eventual undefeated premiers, gives some indication as to the talent amongst the players.

The Second Grade team was restricted by the lack of experienced players, and some hard work on the training and coaching side will be needed for next year. We anticipate that the experience of the remaining 1st Grade players, combined with the enthusiasm of the up-and-comers, will make for even better results next season.

R.E.

1st Grade Soccer

First Grade started the season on a high note, recording convincing wins over Maroubra Bay and Randwick North. However in the following games the side was hampered by injury and sickness, with the result that the team was unable to maintain the high standard of football. A victory over the highly-rated Cleveland St., in spite of our difficulties, was one of the best performances of the season. It was not until the fourth match of the second round that we were at anything like full strength, the 'flu epidemic reducing our numbers drastically for some games.

In the second round we destroyed J.J. Cahill's chances of taking out the premiership in a hard-fought match. The final game against undefeated Randwick was a fitting end to an enjoyable season. We were unlucky not to win, and had to be content with a 1-all draw.

It is always difficult to nominate outstanding players in a team which is always conscious of the need for team-work. However, Les Waddock in attack and Josh Ehrlich in defence would have been the nucleus of the side.

R.E.

2nd Grade soccer

In view of the fact that this is only the second year of Soccer at Sydney High, our 2nd Grade team performed reasonably well throughout the season. This is not, however, indicated in the results, as we won only two of our games in the C.H.S. competition. Our best result was against the experienced North Randwick team a match we won 1-0. As was the case with the 1st Grade team, the team was hampered by loss of players due to the 'flu epidemic. Also to be taken into consideration was the fact that some of our players had never seen a Soccer ball before the start of the season. Nevertheless, on the showing of even the most inexperienced members it is to be hoped that next season the team will do well.

The outstanding players of the year were Greg Saphin and Mark Morgan, who both played defence. Unfortunately our forward line lacked penetration, hence the scarcity of goals throughout the season. Players must learn to run onto the ball and to judge their passes with greater accuracy.

Athletics Carnival

The 1970 School Athletics Championships were held on Thursday, 13th August at the Sydney Cricket Ground. As the day progressed it became apparent that the weather was going to treat us kindly; in fact it was a perfect day for conducting a carnival—warm sunshine, clear sky, and light breeze. It can only be regretted that more boys did not attend to give their support to the Carnival and to the individual competitors. The lack of noise from the stands was the only factor which in any way detracted from a most successful day.

The second ingredient contributing to the success of the Carnival was the organization, this being the work of Mr. E. Wiseman and of the new Sportsmaster, Mr. B. Green. Very few boys are probably aware of the efforts made on their behalf to ensure a well organized Carnival—programmes, ground and equipment hiring, organization of judges and timekeepers, etc. On reflection to say that the Carnival went off “without a hitch” is a tribute to those members of Staff (and boys assisting) involved in the Carnival.

As is usual there were many outstanding performances, and while these should receive their due acknowledgement, perhaps the most significant aspect as concerns competitors on the day was the sportsmanlike attitude of all boys on the ground. The will to win was there (as it should be), but even more apparent was the desire of all boys to contribute to an enjoyable day both for themselves and for the other competitors. This was obvious particularly with regards to the co-operation of the boys with judges and marshalls.

And now for a word on some of the outstanding individual performances. The Age Champions are those boys who have generally revealed “talented versatility”, i.e. they have excelled in more than one aspect of athletics. The Open Age Champion of 1970 is Robert Marshall—victorious in the sprint events up to 400 metres, and in the Open Long Jump—not a bad effort! The 16 Years Champion is R. Parr—first in the High Jump, Triple Jump, and Long Jump, with placings in the 200 metres, 400 metres, and 800 metres; a very solid, all-round athlete. The 15 Years Champion is Ian Fagg. Like Bob Marshall, Ian excelled in the track events, winning the 200 metres, 400 metres, and 800 metres, 1500 metres. His 3rd placing in the 100 metres event meant that Ian had a place in all track events—an outstanding performance. The 14 Years Champion for 1970 is Neil McGill. Neil is a true all-rounder, securing first placings in the 90 metres hurdles, and in the High Jump. Neil also gained placings in the 400 metres, and in the Long Jump. The 13 Years Champion was Kim Poppert. Kim is a particularly promising sprinter, winning the “double”—100 and 200 metres events. He followed this up with a win in the Long Jump with a leap of 16' 2". The 12 Years Champion, P. Singleton has a most impressive list of achievements. He was first in the 100 metres, 200 metres, 800 metres and the 70 metres hurdles. The fact that he could also gain second place in the Long Jump is testimony not only to his versatility but also to his stamina.

The Age Champions are singled out by the School for deserved recognition. There were however many other great competitors on the day—George Mallos in the 14 Years Division, W. Docker in the 16 Years Division, and P. Bear in the Open, to mention a few. But perhaps the most outstanding of all was Geoff James in the Open 1500 Metres. Geoff ran an outstanding race—very much the story of the “loneliness of the long distance runner”.

In all the School can look back on a most successful Carnival, as the results testify.

C.H.S. ANNUAL ATHLETICS CHAMPIONSHIPS

The C.H.S. Annual Athletics Championships were held at the Sydney Cricket Ground on the 25th and 26th of September. A number of High boys were selected in the Phillip Zone team, which won the Championships by 60 points. Detailed below are the High boys who were successful in their respective events.

P. Singleton (1st Form)
1st, 12 Years 800 metres (record)
1st, 12 Years 200 metres (record)
1st, 12 Years 100 metres

N. McGill (3rd Form)
2nd, 14 Years 70 metres hurdles

J. Forrester (3rd Form)
5th, 14 Years 800 metres

R. Marshall (5th Form)
7th, Open 200 metres

R. Day (6th Form)
4th, Open 1500 metres walk

P. Willcox (6th Form)
6th, Open 1500 metres walk

G.P.S. ATHLETICS CARNIVAL

On Saturday, 10th October 1970, the 75th Annual G.P.S. Athletics Carnival was held at the Sydney Cricket Ground. As expected, the standard of athletics was extremely high, with some outstanding performances by some very promising athletes. On the day the High team failed to make much impression on the points score, although there were some good individual performances, and all boys gave of their best. Below are detailed the results as they apply to members of the Sydney High team:

Open Division

800 metres: G. Fagg (3rd)
1500 metres: G. James (1st)

Under 16 Year Division

800 metres : I. Fagg (1st)

Under 15 Year Division

100 metres (Division) : K. Bradford (3rd)

90 metres hurdles : N. McGill (2nd)

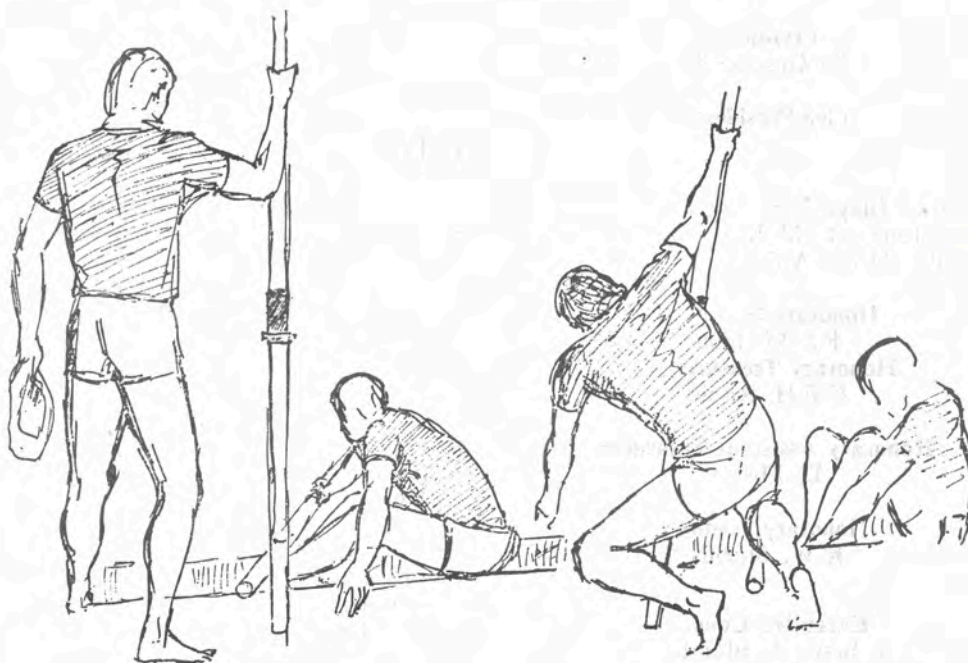

4 x 100 metres relay : High, (3rd)

Under 13 Years Division

100 metres : P. Singleton (1st)

All of these boys gave outstanding performances to win or to take a place in their respective events. If the School wishes to see more names recorded in the results, the example of the G.P.S. schools, with their team discipline and conscientious training, needs to be taken up.

Office

The office of the O.B.U. is at the High Club, 81 York Street, Sydney - 40-4209.

Membership

During 1970 there were 485 ordinary members, 110 student members and 348 life members, which gave a total membership of 943. This is lower than previous years, and since the strength of any association can be measured initially by its membership, it is essential that thought be given to increasing the number of members, particularly among the younger Old Boys who are simply not joining the Union. If this trend continues, it will be necessary to curtail the annual donations given by the Old Boys' Union to the School.

Keith Cameron Memorial Lecture

Professor Oscar Vonwiller, who attended the School in 1896, delivered the 1970 Lecture at the High Club. Professor Vonwiller gave a vivid picture of the School as he saw it as a boy, and for more than an hour kept his audience enthralled with anecdotes, experiences and comments on old times at Castlereagh Street and Mary Ann Street. The 1968 Lecture has been printed and is now available at $1.00 per copy from the Old Boys' Union. It is a priceless document for all those who are interested in the historical background and the tradition of the School. This Lecture narrates the story of the School during the term of its first Headmaster.

High Ball

Attendance at the High Ball held at the Round House this year was smaller than usual but nevertheless it was a most successful function. Miss Sydney High School was selected and duly crowned for 1970. She is Pamela Freer, a striking blonde, who was escorted by Dr. John Stamell, an Old Boy who came all the way from Adelaide. Guests of Honour were the Lord Mayor of Sydney and the Lady Mayoress. Our President, Sir Gordon Wallace, and Lady Wallace entertained the Headmaster and Mrs. Callaghan and representatives from the Old Boys' Unions of the Great Public Schools.

Debating

The annual debate between the School and the Old Boys' Union was again a lively affair with honours going to the School team who, for the first time, became the holders of the Harvey trophy. The debate was on a contemporary issue "That Caesar only knows what is best to render unto Caesar."

Distinguished Old Boys pass on

It is with deep regret that we record the passing of some of the finest gentlemen ever to attend Sydney High School. Sir Charles McDonald, who was Chancellor of Sydney University, died at the Concord Repatriation Hospital on 23rd April. He attended the School from 1907 to 1910. He was the first Senior Prefect; he was the first editor of the Record; he was an outstanding scholar at school and later at the University, where he graduated in Medicine. He served in both world wars and was a true academic, believing that the Classics played a most important part in education. He was knighted by the Queen in 1962 and also received a Papal Knighthood from Pope John in 1960. He was one time President of the Old Boys' Union and a member of the its Council for many years and until his passing, a member of the Advisory Council.

Sir John Madsen passed away in his 91st year. He was a former Dean of the Faculty of Engineering and a member of the University Senate.

Syd. King, one of the finest sportsmen, passed away this year. He was Captain of the School in 1924, captain of the first XV and the first XI, a Waratah and an Australian Rugby Union representative and a fine all-round athlete.

Rear-Admiral Sir Leighton Bracegirdle, former Flag Officer of the Royal Australian Navy and a vice Patron of the Union, passed away early this year. He was always a strong supporter of our activities.

Church Service

A large congregation of Old Boys and Old Girls of the School, together with present students and their friends and relatives, attended St. James Church, King Street, Sydney, to commemorate the 87th anniversary of the founding of the School. The Rev. Barry Theiring delivered the sermon. The Rev. Barry Theiring is Chaplain at Cranbrook School and a former captain of Sydney High School.

High Club

The High Club negotiations to sell the premises at 81 York Street were completed, and it is now proposed to establish the High Club at a new address. Membership is open to all Old Boys of the School, former Masters and their friends, who may join as Associate members, and Old Girls of the School.

Auxiliary

Our Ladies' Auxiliary continues to provide valuable assistance in the organization of the Church Service, the Old Boys' football and cricket matches against the School and also on other occasions. This year's cash donation of $500 was again a valuable contribution to the funds of the Union and is deeply appreciated. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Old Boys' Union is a group of mothers, wives and friends of Old Boys who have passed through the School, and performs a valuable function of contributing to the activities of the Old Boys' Union and through it to the well-being of the School.

Football — Old Boys versus School

The annual match against the School was played at McKay Oval and was again an outstanding success. Three teams took the field and both international and club footballers joined in some rattling good games.

— Sub-District Competition

Three teams of Old Boys played in the metropolitan sub-district Rugby Union competition and the Whidden Cup team became premiers for 1970. A special tribute is paid to Colin Wood who was a great skipper and to Secretary and Treasurer respectively Brent Halligan and John Brown who played a great part in the organization of the Club. The best and fairest player for the season was a dual award to Ian Gilbert and Warwick Selby.

Two teams visited Young in a most enjoyable week end, where they played teams from Young and Cowra.

Societies

Professional groups continue to meet regularly at the High Club; the Medical Association, the Legal Association, the University Association. The classes of 1965, 1967, 1968, 1969 and the Mary Ann group were not as active as we would wish.

Cricket Club

The highlight of the cricket season was again the match with Melbourne High School which was played in Sydney at McKay Oval for the John Elden Challenge Cup. Both teams were entertained at a barbecue after the game and out thanks go to Mr. and Mrs. Philip Madden for their hospitality. A function was also held at the High Club where both teams were entertained before the match. We go to Melbourne next January to play the third of these annual matches with high hopes of completing a hat trick. The fine bowling of Alan Betts (6 for 39) and good run getting by Ray Hick (48) and Geoff Glover (36) were the highlights of the match.

Notes — near and far

Our sympathy goes to Perce Hallett on the loss of his wife.

The Rev. Bernard Judd is overseas exploring geriatric centres.

David Hind is in Bangkok with his wife, who was formerly Joan Nicol.

Alf Gumpert has returned from Israel where he hopes to settle in the next few years.

Ron Ramsay organized a very successful representation for us at the G.P.S.O.B.U. annual golf day, played at the Manly Club. Riverview cleared out with the trophies and have our hearty congratulations.

Lady Betty Ellis was Guest of Honour at the annual afternoon tea given by the Union to our Ladies' Auxiliary.

Bill Widin and Joan Foster are planning to marry.

Eddie Morgan is President of the Class of 1969.

Noel Crellin is the new Treasurer of the High Club.

Chris Levi is in the Royal Australian Navy.

Adrian Paul is teaching at Murrumburrah.

Congratulations to Arthur Castleman on being awarded an M.B.E. in the Queen's Birthday Honours.

Ernie Christensen was a judge at Tokio for the Famechon - Harada world title fight.

Phil. Howard organised a very successful Rugby re-union at which Wallaby Peter Crittle gave a magnificent address.

Warren Osmond, State Secretary of the R.S.L. and one time Treasurer of the Union, was personally given his award of the M.B.E. by her Majesty during the Royal Visit. Warren has been State Secretary of the R.S.L. since 1961.

Professor Ken Cable has made known some interesting historical sidelights. He says that the Castlereagh Street building housed the St. James Parochial School from 1829 to 1882. Prior to that it contained the Sydney Public School. The King's School operated in the building also during 1832 to 1833 during its transition period. Apparently a School operated there some time after 1825 and it continued under various names and authorities until the girls left in 1921. Can we claim foundation in 1825? Our historical roots certainly seem to go that deep.

Our deepest sympathy to the Rev. Jim Peter on the passing of his father, Captain William Alexander Peter, who was among the first pupils at the school. He spent nearly 50 years at sea and retired with a "square-rig" ticket, a Master in steam and a Master in sail.

Old boy Ken Stephen, Secretary of the N.S.W. Rugby League, was missing from the Australia - Gt. Britain test. He went down with a coronary five days before.

Bon Voyage to Geoff Bird off overseas.

Welcome home to Don Mckenna — from South of the Border. This time for good

School Councillors:

Messrs. A.J. Foster and W.F. Halliday
Meetings: Third Thursday of each month at 7.45 p.m.

Following the changes made to the Association's Constitution at the 1969 Annual Meeting, the office bearers for 1970 were elected at the November, 1969 Meeting to take office immediately on the conclusion of the Annual General Meeting in March, 1970. All the main office bearers of 1969 were re-elected for a further term to lead the Association in its task of helping to maintain various sporting and cultural activities at the School and raising the substantial sums of money needed to do this and to help provide additional items of equipment and library and other needs beyond what is supplied through the Education Department.

Raising Funds:

With a budgetted expenditure of $12,700 for the year which included $3,500 for the McKay Grounds, $2,400 for Rowing, $3,500 for school equipment and library needs and various smaller amounts for reduction of the overdraft on the Fairland Pavilion, School prizes and sundry other items, the Association set about raising lithex money through the usual main agencies of the Ladies' Auxiliary, the School Canteen Committee, the Headmaster's Appeal and the Annual Fete in the School grounds.

Details of the Ladies' Auxiliary's work are given in its own Report elsewhere in this issue and we only mention it here to draw attention to the great importance of the Auxiliary's activities and the debt owed to all the ladies for their very effective work throughout the year. Once again under Mrs. Bolton's Presidency the Auxiliary has been responsible for raising a very large sum of money and for maintaining and fostering throughout its activities that friendly atmosphere so much a feature at Sydney High School functions. We are grateful indeed for all that has been done.

The Canteen Committee, too, has worked hard and long to give students and staff facilities for the purchase of meals and refreshments at the School and exercise books and other items of stationery. Habitually the Committee is understaffed and this year, with the building operations going on at the School, it has had to work under adverse physical conditions as well so far as premises are concerned. New premises are under construction and at first it appeared that these would be altogether unsuitable. However negotiations were instituted successfully and the new premises, when completed, should now be adequate. A canteen service such as is provided by this Committee is very necessary at the School and all those mothers who came along to assist have helped in a very real way to better things for the boys—and the staff—at the School.

The Headmaster's Appeal was launched again at the end of July with a target this year of $6,000. With some 900 boys at the School this averages out at a little under $7 per head which should not be a very serious burden to most parents. Usually, however, rather less than half the families appealed to respond so that the burden of providing funds used for the benefit of all the boys at the School is shared rather unequally. We sincerely hope more parents will respond to this Appeal each year—it is the only direct appeal made to all parents during the course of the School year—as expenses continue to increase and supply of funds never quite seems to come up to needs.

Finally, the Annual Fete was held on 26th September. Mr. W.F. Halliday once more acted as organiser and he and a small and active Committee went into action many months earlier to ensure that the organisation flowed smoothly. The success of the Fete is certainly a tribute to Mr. Halliday and his Committee but it is also a tribute to many other helpers, including students, who manage the stalls and supply them with goods, to parents and business firms who make generous donations of money or goods, and to all who come along and buy on the day.

Other Activities :

Besides raising funds the Association has an active management and service role to perform.

Sydney High School, in its unique position as a member of both the Combined High Schools and the Great Public Schools' Associations, makes demands both of students as regards standards of work, sportsmanship and general conduct and of parents as regards provision and maintenance of facilities and equipment.

Accordingly the Association maintains standing committees to deal with specific aspects of the work—the McKay Committee, the Rowing Committee, the Grounds and Maintenance Committee, the Dance Committee, for instance—and these Committees act throughout the School year, sometimes alone and sometimes in association with Old Boy appointees and members of the School Staff.

Appointees to the McKay Committee were Messrs. Cordato, Jelfs, Lopedote, Frumar, Hyatt and Lakeman and their efforts, together with the efforts of other parents—fathers and mothers, too—did much to ensure that the sporting fields were always in good condition and that students and visitors could obtain refreshments at the buffet and drinks stalls on the days of the home football matches. The permanent groundsman maintained at the grounds did a sterling job and various working bees repaired seats, erected goal posts, or carried out painting or cleaning up work. The ladies in the buffet operated a useful safe custody service in looking after valuables for players whilst they were on the field.

On the Rowing Committee, Messrs. Baret, Breakspear, Luscombe, Bowie, Franklin and Parr, helped by other parents, did much work in helping to maintain the rowing fleet and Boatsheds at Abbotsford. The School now has fine facilities for rowing at Abbotsford but these are not maintained without some sacrifice of personal interests by the members of the Committee and other parents who help and it is hoped that more parents of boys who take part in rowing will each year come forward to assist.

The Maintenance and Grounds Committee has not been very active whilst building operations were in progress but, no doubt, a good deal will be found to attend to once these finish in the way of improving and beautifying the surrounds of the School. Mr. L.L. Booth of the School Teaching Staff has taken a personal interest in the School grounds and he, and various boys he has also interested, have done much to improve them—notably in the gardens within the quadrangle.

Most of the usual School dances were suspended because of the building operations and the difficulty in ensuring, with the grounds open at night, that there is no interference by unauthorised persons with valuable building materials and equipment. However one or two dances were held during the year which proved successful and it is hoped that the regular dances can be resumed again soon as they are a good help financially.

Mrs. Couani and her assistants again managed to produce "High Notes" at regular intervals and so helped to keep parents informed of the Association's activities and Mrs. Carpenter and Mr. Lakeman, as our delegates to the Eastern Suburbs District Council of Parents and Citizens' Associations again maintained active liaison. A meeting of the Council was held at the School during the year.

General :

Members active in the Association know how very important its work is for the well-being of the School and the boys who attend it and this year all parents were circularised with a view to enlisting more support and seeking out hidden talent. The circular bore some fruit but it cannot be too highly stressed that if more parents come forward to help the work of the Association will be strengthened, calls on the individual lessened and, most importantly, the lot of students attending the School immeasurably improved.

In conclusion we should like to record our thanks to the Headmaster, the Deputy Headmaster, the School teaching, secretarial and maintenance staffs, and the Caretaker, Mr. O'Brien, for all they have done for the boys, and for us, throughout the year. We take pride in the happy relationship which subsists between the School and the Association and we sincerely hope that this will be preserved and strengthened as the years go on. Especially we hope this relationship, and the co-operation it implies, will continue to be the means of bettering conditions and ensuring that the boys' years at the School are indeed truly happy and fruitful.

LADIES' AUXILIARY

Office Bearers - 1970

President: Mrs. M.A. Bolton

Treasurer: Mrs. W.F. Halliday

Secretary: Mrs. D. Smith

The Auxiliary under the leadership of Mrs. Bolton, commenced 1970 with a luncheon to welcome First Form mothers. Since then we have led a busy and varied life.

The first evening function, "A Night in Hong Kong", proved so popular that it developed into two evenings. The north-side progressive dinner party in May, and the eastern suburbs progressive dinner party in July, were as usual highly successful. A sincere "thank you" to the hosts and hostesses on those occasions, and to the many others who made their homes available for luncheons, morning and afternoon teas.

In our efforts to raise funds to assist the P. and C. we have covered a wide field. At a luncheon in April, Mrs. R. Harding, Senior Nutritionist, Department of Health, addressed us on "Eating Well to Keep Slim." Talks were held on Gem Stones, Beauty Preparations, Building Materials. A demonstration of Bark Paintings was also arranged, as was an inspection of Fort Denison and a tour of wine cellars. A Dinner was held at the Rugby Union Club, with a parade of the latest ski wear. We trust that in all this there was something to interest everyone.

Our grateful thanks to the many people who contributed to the success of the ninth Father and Son Dinner. The north-side group under the leadership of Mrs. E. Hollingworth have made a worthwhile contribution to the success of the Auxiliary. Thank you, ladies.

The Canteen, with a capable supervisor, Mrs. E. Simpson, has provided a necessary service for the boys under difficult circumstances, namely re-building. Thanks also to the Canteen Committee, President - Mrs. Appleby, Secretary - Mrs. Howland, Treasurer - Mrs. Hacobian, Roster Secretary - Mrs. Howes, and all the willing helpers.

Our thanks go to Mr. M.R. Callaghan, the Headmaster, Mr. A. Cocking, the Deputy-Headmaster, and the Staff, for their help and advice at all times. The School secretaries, Mesdames B. Brathwaite, M. Burg, and J.

Byrne have been kind and helpful on every occasion.

The members of the executive are grateful to Mr. R.A. Blomberg, the President of the P. and C. Association, for his advice and practical assistance throughout the year.

LODGE SYDNEY HIGH SCHOOL No. 631,

United Grand Lodge of N.S.W.

This year the Lodge was fortunate to have the leadership of W. Bro. Bob Clark. As usual, the bonds of Freemasonry combined with the natural fellowship between those who have learnt or taught at S.H.S. to make a most enjoyable year.

Visits were exchanged with other school and university lodges. July saw a combined meeting of school lodges in the presence of the Grand Master: there a unique amalgam of music and ceremony was voted a great success by the brethren. In addition the Lodge exchanged fraternal visits with Lodge Rugby and likewise Lodge Bronte where W. Bro. Jack McMahon, sometime teacher at S.H.S., is Worshipful Master.

Our annual trip to Newcastle to visit Lodge Artificer included an inspection of the latest power station on Lake Macquarie followed by the customary barbecue. We returned the hospitality when the brethren from Lodge Artificer visited Sydney.

A meeting which many will remember vividly is that where W. Bro. Allan Callaway, a past master of the Lodge, presented the film he made while coach of the Australian Eight at the Mexico Olympics in 1968. His driving enthusiasm for rowing produced not only a silver medal for Australia, but a film worthy of a medal in its own right.

W. Bro. Clark concluded the year with a fine ceremony to install W. Bro. Malcolm Beveridge (1948) as his successor. The brethren look forward to another successful year with their new Worshipful Master.

The Lodge meets on the second Friday of each month (except January) in the Masonic Hall, Castlereagh Street. Our Secretary, Sid Pointing, telephone 20.245 (business) would be very happy to give full details to any old boy, teacher or ex-teacher interested in joining.

We keep a complete record of all your child's measurements, so you can phone or write to us for any school requirements and we can send them out to you.

Your child will be given personal care and attention.

If you're unable to accompany your child in, special hostesses will take complete charge.

Special extended payment systems account is available.

You have up to 8 months to pay for whatever school requirements you buy at D.J's. Pay instalments, about quarter of the amount, at the end of every month, plus service fee.

CSR opportunities

The Colonial Sugar Refining Co. Ltd. will have vacancies for staff appointments in 1971.

THE CSR COMPANY

CSR is one of Australia's largest industrial and commercial organisations. It employs about 16,000 people in Australia, New Zealand and Fiji. The company's main business is the manufacture and marketing of raw and refined sugar and sugar products, building materials and industrial chemicals. The company also has important interests in mining, such as the ventures at Mt. Newman, W.A. and Gove, N.T. The company and its subsidiaries operate 69 factories.

CSR OFFERS AN EXCITING FUTURE

CSR offers a wide range of opportunities in a modern, widely diversified and constantly growing company. The many fields of work include:

- accounting, finance and commercial
 - agricultural
 - chemical and geological
 - chemical, mechanical, electrical and mining engineering
 - marketing and sales
- all of which can lead to responsible and challenging positions in top management and administration.

TRAINING

All newly engaged officers receive training appropriate to their work. The company's training programme includes:

- Formal courses in tertiary education at a university or other teaching establishment. Officers start their courses on a part-time basis but may take opportunities to complete them on a full-time basis. (Each officer's course largely depends on his final school examination results.)
- An organised plan of training and rotation of appointments to give wide experience of the many different facets of work in the company.
- A programme of development including internal training courses, to encourage young men of ability to better equip themselves for promotion.

Salaries paid to CSR staff members compare favourably with general industry standards. The company has a well established superannuation fund.

APPLICATIONS

Applicants must have obtained the Higher School Certificate or equivalent, or be sitting for the examination in 1970. They should submit hand-written applications, preferably before the end of October, 1970 to:

The Chief Staff Officer,
The Colonial Sugar Refining Co. Ltd.,
1-7 O'Connell Street,
Sydney. 2000.

A RIGHT DECISION

When you leave school, what are you going to do? Get a job? Enter Teachers' College or University? Go to Tech? No matter what path you choose, you will be called upon to assume new responsibilities and make decisions. The right decision now is to open a Savings Bank account at your High School, if you have not already done so. This account will be most valuable to you when you enter your chosen field and even more valuable should you later wish to start a business or acquire a home.
